Study proposal submitted

Herb Bryan of Horner & Shifrin, Inc., a St. Louis engineering firm among those being asked to submit proposals concerning studies of several possible port sites for the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority, makes a presentation to port commission members. Listening to the presentation, from left, are Jack Hunter of Sikeston Route Four, C. B. Taylor of Morley, C. W. Rushing of Cape Girardeau, A. J. Israel defended, attacked in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States defended Israel's rescue of hijacked hostages from Uganda and called on the Security Council to rally the members of the United Nations against hijacking and international terrorism.

Ambassador William M. Scranton reminded the 15-nation council Monday night that the Israeli raid on Uganda's Entebbe airport on July 4 never would have taken place if Palestinian and West German terrorists had not hijacked an Air France jetliner and taken it to Uganda's Entebbe airport with some 250 hostages.

Accusing Uganda of cooperating with the sky pirates in violation of its own treaty obligations, Scranton said Israel "invoked one of the most remarkable rescue missions in history, a combination of guts and brains that has seldom if ever been surpassed.

He told the council members they must do everything in their power "to insure against a recurrence of this brutal, callous and senseless international crime of hijacking — the crime which gave rise to the Israeli action."

But neither a U.S.-British resolution condemning hijacking nor an African resolution condemning Israel was given any chance of adoption. Despite African talk of a compromise, the council debate was expected to end later this week with a U.S. veto of the African resolution and the failure of the American-British proposal to muster the nine votes necessary for passage.

Scranton acknowledged that Israel committed "a temporary breach of the territorial integrity of Uganda."

But he said "there is a well-established right to use limited force for the protection of one's own nationals from an imminent threat of injury or death in a situation where the state in whose territory they are located either is unwilling or unable to protect them.... The requirements of this right to protect nationals were clearly met in the Entebbe case."

The American representative said there was "substantial evidence that the government of Uganda cooperated with and aided the hijackers" in violation of the 1970 Hague Convention against air piracy, which Uganda has accepted.

Jordan excites delegates

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Carter was expected to decide on a running mate today after the Democratic convention heard keynoter Barbara Jordan's rousing call for a new "national community" to fulfill America's purpose.

Carter intimates indicated he would make his choice today although it probably won't be announced until Thursday, following Carter's own presidential nomination Wednesday.

Speculation centered on Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, Walter Mondale and John Glenn as the leading prospects for the No. 2 spot. Also under consideration are Sens. Frank Church, Henry Jackson and Adlai Stevenson.

Meanwhile, the first real excitement of the convention was added by Miss Jordan, the black congresswoman from Texas, who brought yawning delegates to their feet with a speech that took some pages from the Carter stylebook.

"We must restore our belief in ourselves," Miss Jordan said. "We must address and master the future together.

"It can be done if we restore the belief that we share a common national endeavor, if we restore our sense of national community," she told the cheering conventioneers.

"We are a people in search of a national community," she said. Such a search is an attempt "to fulfill our national purpose, to create and sustain a society in which all of us are equal."

Miss Jordan, who had been mentioned in early speculation over a Carter running mate but had not made the list of finalists, received a standing ovation before and after she spoke and upstaged Sen. John Glenn, the other opening night keynoter who is still on Carter's lists of prospects.

Glenn had first crack at the audience in a speech declaring that "this is the time to erase divisiveness and despair...to build a nation of justice, a nation of equality, a nation of opportunity in which we can be proud patriots."

But the delegates, who have lacked the stimulus of a nominating contest, milled about the convention floor and chatted among themselves throughout the Glenn speech.

It was a different matter, however, when Miss Jordan, the first black woman ever to keynote a major political convention, rose to speak. "There is something different and special about this opening night," she said. "I am a keynote speaker."

Since the first Democratic convention in 1832, she said, "it would have been most unusual for any national political party to have asked a Barbara Jordan to make a keynote address - most unusual."

"The past notwithstanding, a Barbara Jordan is before you tonight," she said. "This is one additional bit of evidence that the American dream need not forever be deferred."

After Glenn had delivered his speech, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin observed that it could be crucial in Glenn's chances for the vice presidential role.

"I think that making a keynote speech is a very high risk proposition," Lucey said.

There also were echoes of Carter's campaign in Glenn's speech as he spoke of compassion, of public confidence and of government grown so big and complex it leaves its citizens cowed and powerless.

The cure, Glenn said, "lies in renewed partnership between citizens and their government." But he said it would take new leaders with vision, "a Democratic president and the next

Authority seeks funds for study

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Members of the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Commission agreed Monday to request $2,500 from both the Scott and Cape Girardeau County Courts.

The money is to be used for the port authority's part of the $20,000 to be made available for engineering studies of future port cities. According to the commission members, the entire $20,000 may not be required for the studies, but that has been selected as a ceiling for the project.

The port commissioners also voted to turn down an Ozark Regional Commission offer of a steam crane. The crane, offered free and clear, was reportedly built in 1928, had limited capabilities and would require conversion from oil-burning to diesel power.

It was decided that if after the port commission went to all the expense of transportation and insurance in getting the crane here from its berth in the upper Ohio River, it might have little or no value here and would represent a waste of taxpayers' money. This determination, added to the short time allowed by ORC to make a "yes or no decision," resulted in the decision not to accept the equipment sight unseen.

Gary Taylor and Dan Bollinger, representatives of the Missouri Division of Community Development, consulted with the members concerning scope of work and invitations to submit proposals for engineering studies of the various port sites.

The studies are to include economic and structural feasability statements for several sites being considered for the port, followed by preliminary sketches and data when the sites have been narrowed down to a few particularly acceptable ones.

Representatives from Horner Schifrin, Inc. of St. Louis, the engineering firm that participated in the construction of Cape Girardeau Municipal Airport in northern Scott County, made a presentation to the port commission members and will be asked to submit proposals, along with several other firms.

Because of conflicting schedules of some members, a change in monthly meeting date to the last Monday in the month was proposed. The action will require a change in the port commission bylaws and will be discussed at the next meeting, scheduled at 4 p.m. Aug. 9 in the Scott County courthouse in Benton.

Yandell will head schools

BELL CITY — Thomas Yandell of Vanduser has been hired as superintendent of schools, effective July 1, by the board of education. He takes the place of Golden Neely, who resigned to take a job with a realty company.

Yandell has been a vocational agricultural teacher for 15 years, a principal and a vocational director for the past three years.

He is a native of the Vanduser area, but had been away for about 30 years.

He had been in Pemiscot County about 21 years working in that county's special school district and in the Steele School system before that.

He commented that a superintendent's responsibilities in a small school district are "a little bit of everything" and mentioned he had been running a jackhammer this morning.

He said his main objective will be to keep the district on a sound financial footing.

"We'll try to maintain the quality the citizens expect," he said.

Dance related problems are protested in Benton

BENTON — Twenty-five residents appeared before the City Council Monday night to protest the drinking, wild driving and general lawlessness connected with dances being held at the city community building.

City attorney Tom Arnold drew up a petition for the residents to sign, and the council passed a resolution asking the Chamber of Commerce to discontinue the dances.

Complaints were also received concerning similar behavior at various parking lots throughout town, and it was suggested that the highway patrol and state liquor control agents be asked to come in and investigate the situation.

The petitioners later attended a Chamber of Commerce meeting also being held Monday night, and the chamber agreed to suspend the dances for 90 days.

An ordinance was passed making fireworks illegal within the city limits.

In other council business, Lyman Harrison requested that a portion of Tywappity Street be vacated by the city so he can build a carport on the site. The request was denied.

It was also agreed that city streets in need of repair would be fixed.

Madrid begins trash pick-up

NEW MADRID — The City Council voted unanimously Monday night to initiate immediately its own solid waste and garbage system. The move came after it was learned that New Madrid County Sanitation Inc., the firm which had the present contract for garbage pickups had gone out of business.

The city had to assume collection of trash during the past two weeks and has been using street department equipment.

Plans call for the purchase for $15,000 of a used 1975 packer truck with a 20-yard capacity. The unit is expected to be in service by next Tuesday and should be able to pick up city trash in four working days. Rates for the service will remain at $3.25 per month.

In other business handled, the council approved the results of the special city election held June 29 in which the voters approved by a vote of 93-10 the special tax of 10 cents per $100 property valuation for the maintenance of city parks and cemeteries.

The tax rate for 1976 was set at $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, earmarked as follows: $1 for the general revenue fund, 75 cents for bonded indebtedness fund and 10 cents for the cemetery fund. The rate is the same as 1975.

Authorized was the entering into a contract with the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission for updating the comprehensive plan for the city which includes parks, streets and roads, community services and code enforcement. The comprehensive plan is required for entitlement to be eligible for funds under the community block grant program of Housing and Urban Development.

Also authorized was payment of the annual city assessment of 18 cents per person as counted in the 1970 census for use by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

In his report to the council, City Administrator Don Lloyd advised the council that most of the curbs and guttering for the new streets in the New Town section have been completed and that paving should begin shortly. He stated that $81,000 had been received toward the project from the grant of nearly $300,000 approved for the city through HUD.

Lloyd also reported that a final requisition for $12,000 in park development funds has been received.

The council agreed to call an open meeting for July 19 when a representative of Phelps & Hogland Engineering Co. of Raytown will meet with the council to discuss the funding of improvements pointed out in its rate analysis and system study presented to the board at the May 3 meeting.

After Alderwoman Virginia Carlson pointed out that the city library building was still in need of a roof, the council authorized Lloyd to seek bids for a new one.

Farm chemicals stolen

MATTHEWS -- Farm chemicals valued at $11,100 were stolen in a break-in sometime over the weekend at Agrico Chemical Co., according to the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department.

Herbicides taken included 25 gallons of trifluralin, 136 gallons of bentazon, and 350 four-pound bags of metribuzin.

Woman is assaulted

LILBOURN — A beating and alleged rape Monday night of a 63-year-old Lilbourn woman is under investigation by the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department.

The assault reportedly occurred about midnight by a coal yard between south Third and Fourth streets in Lilbourn.

The woman, who lives on South Fifth Street, told officers that she was walking home from town when two young men with long hair grabbed her, beat her in the face, and sexually assaulted her.

3 hurt in 2 area accidents

Three persons received moderate injuries in two single-vehicle accidents on area roads Monday, according to the highway patrol.

Two Sikeston youths were injured at 10:10 p.m. Monday on Highway 77 two miles south of Oran in Scott County.

The highway patrol reported the accident occurred when Jeffrey Allen Baker, 18, the driver of a southbound car, attempted to elude an Oran police officer at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour and lost control of the vehicle, which ran off the road, demolished 50 feet of shrubbery and struck three trees before coming to a stop.

Baker and a passenger, Donna Shelby Baker, 17, of Sikeston were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A Cape Girardeau youth was injured in a motorcycle accident at 2 p.m. Monday half mile north of Cape Girardeau on Cape Rock Drive.

The accident occurred when Britt Stembel, 16, lost control of a northbound motorcycle which ran off the road and overturned.

He was taken to the St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Delegates to fight abortion plank

NEW YORK (AP) — Refusing to accept a Jimmy Carter-approved platform plank, Missouri delegates hoped today to force a Democratic National Convention floor debate over the abortion issue.

Representatives of the Missouri Pro-Life organization arranged a meeting ahead of today's platform session, trying to muster enough support to get a fourth of the convention's platform committee to endorse a minority report challenging the abortion plank.

State Sen. Lawrence Lee of St. Louis, chairman of the Missouri Pro-Life caucus, planned to huddle with one of the three convention parliamentarians to "explore the possibility of raising the issue on the convention floor."

However, under convention rules, it takes 25 per cent of the platform committee supporting the minority report to force floor discussion of a platform plank.

"We're not hopeful it can be done, but we're going to explore it," said James Spainhower, state treasurer and chairman of the delegation.

He said the Missouri Pro-Life caucus would have petitions ready for the platform committee members to sign if the parliamentarians approved the procedure.

The platform plank, rejected by 49 of the 71 Missouri delegates at a Monday caucus, says it would be "undesirable" to attempt to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court decisions on abortion.

The Pro-Life forces prefer no mention of the abortion issue to that position.

"At the present time, I would be satisfied if we could just get it deleted from the platform," said state Rep. Earl Schlef of Dellwood, one of the Pro-Life caucus leaders.

Despite the odds against bringing the abortion issue to the floor for debate, Lee and Schlef said it is too important to the Missouri delegation to accept defeat without a fight.

The anti-abortion sentiment appears strongest in the Missouri delegation, although Schlef said Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota, another outspoken opponent of abortion, was helping in the battle. Schlef said Missouri also was getting significant support from the New York and Minnesota delegations.

"I'm very much disappointed that Mr. Carter didn't help get it out of the platform," said Schlef, an officially uncommitted delegate. Schlef is among eight Missouri delegates who may vote for anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack out of protest.

The abortion issue, hotly debated at Missouri's Monday caucus, is the only one getting more than casual attention in the delegation. It hasn't split the delegation, Spainhower said, because it was given a thorough airing.

"I think the Pro-Life people feel they had every opportunity to express their sentiment," Spainhower said. "The hangup is not in our delegation, but in the convention rules."

Spainhower said things are "fairly peaceful in our delegation, except for the passes."

He referrdd to a shortage of guest passes so the 142 delegates and alternates can get relatives and friends into at least one of the convention's four sessions running through Thursday night.

Spainhower said he had only 29 guest passes for delegates and alternates but by scrounging up some extras he thinks there are enough for each of the 142 to have at least one ticket for one session to give away.

However, under convention rules, it takes 25 per cent of the platform committee supporting the minority report to force floor discussion of a platform plank.

"We're not hopeful it can be done, but we're going to explore it," said James Spainhower, state treasurer and chairman of the delegation.

He said the Missouri Pro-Life caucus would have petitions ready for the platform committee members to sign if the parliamentarians approved the procedure.

The platform plank, rejected by 49 of the 71 Missouri delegates at a Monday caucus, says it would be "undesirable" to attempt to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court decisions on abortion.

"At the present time, I would be satisfied if we could just get it deleted from the platform," said state Rep. Earl Schlef of Dellwood, one of the Pro-Life caucus leaders.

Despite the odds against bringing the abortion issue to the floor for debate, Lee and Schlef said it is too important to the Missouri delegation to accept defeat without a fight.

The anti-abortion sentiment appears strongest in the Missouri delegation, although Schlef said Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota, another outspoken opponent of abortion, was helping in the battle. Schlef said Missouri also was getting significant support from the New York and Minnesota delegations.

"I'm very much disappointed that Mr. Carter didn't help get it out of the platform," said Schlef, an officially uncommitted delegate. Schlef is among eight Missouri delegates who may vote for anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack out of protest.

The abortion issue, hotly debated at Missouri's Monday caucus, is the only one getting more than casual attention in the delegation. It hasn't split the delegation, Spainhower said, because it was given a thorough airing.

"I think the Pro-Life people feel they had every opportunity to express their sentiment," Spainhower said. "The hangup is not in our delegation, but in the convention rules."

Spainhower said things are "fairly peaceful in our delegation, except for the passes."

He referrdd to a shortage of guest passes so the 142 delegates and alternates can get relatives and friends into at least one of the convention's four sessions running through Thursday night.

Spainhower said he had only 29 guest passes for delegates and alternates but by scrounging up some extras he thinks there are enough for each of the 142 to have at least one ticket for one session to give away.

The African Blood Bath Begins

The bitter harvest of America's new policy of interference in the internal affairs of southern Africa has begun: heightened guerrilla warfare in Rhodesia, in the United States anti-South African demonstrations, and even solicitation on the streets of Washington to send a military force to fight in southern Africa. Predictably, the same groups which so strongly opposed U.S. help to our friends in South Vietnam are now rallying in favor of the destruction of our natural friends and allies in Africa.

Through it all, of course, is the reeking double standard which for so long has been so fashionable in the United Nations. The most abject tyranny of white over white or black over black is condoned, rationalized, forgiven. But the white minoirities of southern Africa can do nothing right. They are universally condemned as the embodiment of the most monstrous and majority. They must now either agree to their political and cultural extinction, say their foes, or else be destroyed by force.

Even the simple fact of a meeting between Secretary Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster has been condemned by some as "an insult to the black people." Attempts to maintain order by South African police in the face of rampaging rioters are denounced as "murder."

Dr. Kissinger correctly stated the problem on the occasion of his meeting with Vorster: "The problem," he said, "is whether it is possible to start an evolution in South Africa in which sufficient guarantees are given to the minority so a system can evolve that the majority of the people want and that is bearable for the minority."

Unfortunately, Kissinger's earlier "Luska Doctrine" came down hard on the side of black Africa, and virtually guaranteed a blood bath, whatever its intentions. It made a moral judgment against the whites without regard to the factual situation, and it gave encouragement to militant and irresponsible elements to use force rather than reason.

All of which certainly delights our communist enemies. They well know how to fish in such troubled waters.

The issue is Equal Protection

American children have been bused to school almost ever since there were buses. In fact, busing was the issue in the first of the five cases eventually decided by the Supreme Court under the label Brown vs. Board of Education. But back then the complaint was that white children were being bused and blacks weren't.

The 22 years of disagreement since the Brown decision have evidently done nothing to shake the high court's belief in constitutional rights for all Americans. Recently, the Burger court refused to review the Boston busing order, prompting an antibusing activist on the Boston School Committee to predict violence. The opponents, as she put it, are "up against the wall with no place to go." But violence has accomploished nothing and is even less likely to result in changes now that the Supreme Court has reaffirmed its position.

In decision after carefully drafted decision, beginning with Brown in 1954, the high courts has held that segregated public schools are unconstitutional and that busing is one way-often the only way-to conteract deliberate segregation by school officials. The issue is not "quality education," as President Ford and others would like to have us believe; it's equal protection under the Constitution. The lawyer in Attorney General Edward Levi must have taken procedence over the politician when he wisely declined to intervene in the Boston case.

The latest Supreme Court action should discourage Justic Department intervention on behalf of the opposition in other pending busing challenges. As the Supreme Court said more than two decades ago: "The vitality of these constitutional principles cannot be allowed to yield simply because of disagreement with them." Neither violence nor presidential intervention is likely to change that.

IMPRACTICAL SOLUTION

Everyone alive has to breathe, and no one favors dirty air. Thus, the Clean Air act of 1970 was passed for the purpose of achieveing acceptable levels of ambient air quality by 1975. This simply means high air quality at ground level where people breathe.

The nation's electric utility companies support this objective, but oppose the means which the federal Environmental Protection Agency has chosen to achieve it. Sulfur emissions, under present rules, must be removed from electric generating plant flue gases, even though they may be emitted from stacks hundreds of feet above the ground and have not appreciable effect on the quality of the air at ground level. Such low-sulfur stack emissions cannot be achieved except by burning scarce and high-cost, low-surluf fuels or through the installation of sulfur oxide removal equipment, known as scrubbers. U. S. electric ompanies have spent more than $300 million in search of a practical solution to the sulfur emission problem. Scrubbers that work and which themselves do not contribute further to envinromental problems may someday be developed.

In the meanwhile, much of the nation's vast coal reserves are banned from use in power plantsd. Low-sulfur, imported fuel oils must be burned in generating stations in many parts of the country at high cost to electric power consumers. The Environmental Protection Agency itself estimates a 17 per cent increase in the cost of electricity to the consumer just to cover the use of sulfur removal devices in generating plants. Other authorities predict a 20 to 30 percent increase. Continuing inflation will boost these costs.

Congress should take action to clarify the meaning of its clean air legislation and permit the use of the nation's coal supplies in power plants designed and located in such a way as to meet ground level air quality standards. The alternative will be to aggravate fuel oil and natural gas supply problems, increase dependence on unreliable foreign supplies of these fuels and add electric power to the energy shortage already plaguing the nation. Clean air we CAN afford. Rigid and impractical methods of achieveing it, we CANNOT.

BUREAUCRATS WORSE THAN WEATHER

A strange article appeared recently in a Soviet magazine. The author scoffed at the oft-used excuse that bad weather is responsible for Russia's disastrous agricultural production and said that "bureaucrats do more harm than the coldest winter or worst drought."

Most of the winter wheat is sown in the fertile areas of southern Russia and the Ukraine, once known as the "bread-basket of Europe." The writer pointed out that "every third winter since 1891 has been as cold as the one which was credited with destroying much of the winter wheat crop in 1972." Yet he said "proper precautions and sowing would have saved more than 90 per cent of the lost crop in tha year."

Who is to blame? The journalist, an agriculture specialist, says it is bureaucratic bungling by those government officials responsible for agricultural planning.

The examples offered were devastating: lack of contour plowing (fields are plowed straight up and down, allowing water to run off and causing drought and dust storms); waste of fertilizers (only one farm in 30 plows fertilizer into the roots of winter wheat where it counts); lack of crop rotation; and wrong choice of seeds for the climate.

Everything appearing in print in the Soviet Union is censored, so publication of this article must have had high official support. Perhaps the size of this year's grain disaster--production of only 137 million tons of grain compared with a planned 215 million tons-- has prompted some Soviet officials to open a serious debate about their agricultural troubles, since the bureaucracy (the state) is the very heart of their economic system.

It should show Americans that anybody who advocates more government involvement in the means of production in this country should be aware of the sad state of bureaucratically operated agriculture in Communist Russia.

McGOVERNITES RUN CARTER CAMPAIGN--SMILE!

Where Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter really stands on the political issues of the day continues to remain a sort of blurry mystery. This former hard-line supporter of the Vietnam war now wants to grant a "full pardon" to draft dodgers and deserters. And though he nominated Sen. Henry Jackson (D.-Wash.) in the 1972 Democratic convention to help blunt the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern (D.-S.D.), Carter, it now turns out, has turned to McGovernites to help run his campaign.

James Wall, a Methodist clergyman and editor of the liberal Christian Century, was Illinois state chairman ofr McGovernin 1972, but he wound up as head of the incedibly successful Carter campaign in the state this time around.

"Erstwhile McGovernites dominate Carter' organization in Illinois and elsewhere (especially Florida, scene of his most impressive victory)," wrote columnists Evans and Novak just prior to the Illinois primary.

Though McGovern thoroughly distrusts Carter, Carter has apparently eagerly wooed the South Dakota senator, and the South Dakotan, say friends, might wind up backing Carter, especially if the Democratic race ends up as a face-off between Jackson and the one-time Georgia governor.

One reason he might get McGovern's blessing, it is said, is the presence of so many McGovern foot soldiers now in the Carter camp.

Carter began to woo the McGovernites last May when he invited millionaire Chicago lawyer Louis Manilow, a past econtributor to McGovern, to lunch at Maxim's in the Windy City. Manilow was so impressed, he became Carter's chief Illinois fund-raiser.

But where does Carter stand on national defense and detente? He continues to straddle. Just before the Illinois primary, Carter delivered a 30-minute speech before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, scoring Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's detente policies.

Carter, in phrases that could have been uttered by Ronald Reagan or Henry Jackson, said detente has allowed the Soviet Union to expand its "process of world revolution without the threat of nuclear war."

But just when one thought Carter was adopting a hard line that could turn off the McGovernites, he said the trouble with Nixon-Kissinger and Ford-Kissinger foreign policy is that it is based on "the assumption that the world is a jungle of competing national antagonism, where military muscle and econmic muscle are the only things that work."

He then said he favors "the objectives of detente" and he took a swing at Jackson, saying he rejects "the strident and bellicose voices of those who would have this country return to the days of the Cold War with the Soviet Union."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter: Piety to Politics

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

NEW YORK -- In the smoke-filled backrooms, the hard-bitten political veterans don't quite know how to take the two evangelists who are dominating the Democratic convention.

Jimmy Carter is an unabashed, born-again Southern Baptist, who has brought piety to politics. His most outspoken critic, California's Governor Jerry Brown, who studied to become a Jesuit priest, would like to impose poverty vows upon the government.

The politicians in the backrooms, skeptical by nature, find it hard to swallow all this sanctimony. But they aren't quite sure where the Pied Piping ends and the plain politicking begins.

Those who have rubbed Carter the wrong way have noticed that the engaging smile quickly fades and a cold glint is detectable in his eyes. And those who have gained entree to his strategy sessions report that he drops the apostolic approach and gets down to brass-tacks politics.

As one source close to Carter put it: "When Jimmy Carter talks about the Catholic bloc or the Jewish bloc, he is interested in their votes, not their souls."

Sources who have sat in on Jerry Brown's strategy sessions describe him, too, as a skillful, sagacious politician. Back in Sacramento, they have heard him discuss his "formula" for wooing liberals and conservatives at the same time.

He would "appoint women and minorities to high governmental posts," our sources recall his saying. "This should get excellent press play and win the support of women and minorities."

Simultaneously, he would court the conservatives, he said, by implementing "a program of fiscal conservatism and cutting welfare expenditures." It was a formula, our sources pointed out, that produced precisely the results he predicted.

Brown also has a reputation as a tax reformer and champion of the poor. But in the backrooms, sources remember his counseling: "The people who would benefit from tax reforms don't understand or appreciate what you're giving them, but the people who have their taxes raised know exactly what they're losing and will scream."

Yet for every cynic, there are a dozen who will attest to the sincerity and idealism of both Carter and Brown.

Declares an associate who knows Carter well: "Jimmy is basically a simple man, a man of character, who believes in God and isn't ashamed to say so."

Other intimates agree that Carter is acutely conscious of the need to revive the old American values and to restore public confidence in government. They say, for lifting the spirits and bolstering the faith of the American people.

Those who know Brown contend that he, too, is a man of character and conviction. He sleeps on a mattress on the floor of a $250-a-month apartment and rides around in a lowly Plymouth. This is no political gimmick, they say.

"When Jerry took vows of poverty," insists one intimate, "he meant it." Brown is equally sincere, say others, about imposing his own thriftiness on the government. "He really believes that the American people must become less profligate," says an associate. At the same time, Brown's supporters can tick off the programs he has pushed to improve the lot of the underprivileged.

Sums up his father, Pat Brown, himself a former California governor: "Life to Jerry is very interesting and very stimulating. He isn't like his father, who was driving and pushing all the time in pursuit of his ambitions."

Forgotten Man: Shunted into the shadows of Madison Square Garden is the hero of the 1972 convention and the victim of the Watergate tactics four years ago.

Sen. George McGovern, D.-S.D., who won the Democratic nomination last time, has had four years to reflect why he lost the election. He set down some of his private thoughts the other day in a letter to a friend.

"When I read about the current display of unity around Governor (Jimmy) Carter," wrote McGovern, "I think how deeply we wanted to achieve the same attitude four years ago ... Having won the nomination fairly and squarely, it was my fervent hope that we would have a few weeks time prior to the national convention to heal the wounds opened in that nomination effort.

"Regrettably, all the other candidates and some of the nation's top labor leaders joined in an effort to block my nomination in Miami ... A challenge was mounted to deny the winner-take-all California primary results which we had won. This meant that instead of a month of unifying efforts on my part, when I could visit with the defeated candidates, labor leaders and others, we had to fight for our lives right up until the moment of my nomination in Miami ...

"It was during this time of bitterness and confusion," reflected McGovern, "that we were denied the opportunity for the kind of healing that is now going on in the Democratic Party. It also deprived us of an opportunity to think quietly about the vice presidential selection, to interview the various candidates in advance and to check carefully on their backgrounds and acceptability."

He singled out Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me. "Two days after the California primary," wrote McGovern, "I met with Senator Muskie, who had been the early front-runner for the Democratic nomination, and urged him to support me for the nomination. I also asked him if he would be available to be my running mate.

"He seemed to lean in the direction of an endorsement at that time and did not reject the vice presidential inquiry ... But to my surprise, the next day he joined in the California challenge and became an active participant in the move to block my nomination."

A VICTORY FOR AMIN

WASHINGTON--While the Western press has been giving the Israeli army credit for pulling off one of the great military operations of modern times, no one has taken note of the fantastic success of Field Marshal Idi Amin Dada in driving out the invaders from his country in less than an hour.

According to a military spokesman in Entebbe, the Ugandan army repulsed the invastion of Entebee and drove off the hostile troops, forcing them to flee Uganda by plane. As of this writing, the Entebbe Airport is still in Ugandan hands and Israel suffered a terrible defeat when their soldiers had to return home in disgrace.

An admirer of Field Marshal Amin told me, "Everyone keeps talking about the Israeli success, but no one gives credit to the field marshal for rallying his troops and preventing Israel from taking over the country."

"I never thought of it that way, but it's true. If Amin still holds the Entebbe Airport, that means the Ugandans won," I said.

"Exactly. The field marshal has given Israel a thrashing they'll never forget. They'll think twice before they send commandos into his country again."

"Was the field marshal expecting them?"

"Of course, he was. Field Marshal Amin has one of the greatest military minds of the 20th century. He was aware that the Israelis would try something, and he had all his troops alerted."

"But why did he leave to attend a meeting of the Organization of African States if he knew the Israelis were going to invade his country?"

"To catch them off guard. That was part of the plan. The Israelis were lulled into a false sense of security when they saw Amin boarding a plane for the OAS conference. 'Big Daddy' knew that as soon as he left the Israelis would put their disastrous plan into effect."

"And he was right. The ruse worked."

"It certainly did. The Israelis flew their commandos 2,600 miles to the Entebbe Airport and found themselves surrounded by crack Ugandan groops. They had no choice but to pick up the hostages and high-tail it out of there, or they would have been annihilated."

"Where was Big Daddy while all this was going on?"

"The Israelis thought he was at the OAS conference, but he was at his command post in his bunker, directing the defense of the airport."

" Why didn't Big Daddy send up his MIG-21s and MIG-17s to repulse the invasion?"

"That was another ruse the field marshal pulled off. He knew the Israelis wanted him to send up his fighter planes so they could shoot them down. So he kept his fighters on the ground and gave his pilots the night off. This threw the Israeli strategy completely off, and they were forced to blow up the field marshal's planes on the ground. The Israelis were so busy blowing up Big Daddy's planes they never had time to capture the airport."

"I never thought of it that way, but when you look back on it, it was a military stroke of genius," I said in admiration.

"The field marshal counted on surprise, deception and reading the enemy's mind. He knew that he had to hold the airport at all costs. When the Israelis realized what they were up against, the fled in disarray."

"I guess they'll be studying Big Daddy's brilliant defense in military schools all over the world. I hope he at least gets a medal for it."

"President Amin has ordered a new medal to be struck for Field Marshal Amin and will present it to him at the palace as soon as Big Daddy considers it safe to leave his bunker."

The issue is Equal Protection

American children have been bused to school almost ever since there were buses. In fact, busing was the issue in the first of the five cases eventually decided by the Supreme Court under the label Brown vs. Board of Education. But back then the complaint was that white children were being bused and blacks weren't.

The 22 years of disagreement since the Brown decision have evidently done nothing to shake the high court's belief in constitutional rights for all Americans. Recently, the Burger court refused to review the Boston busing order, prompting an antibusing activist on the Boston School Committee to predict violence. The opponents, as she put it, are "up against the wall with no place to go." But violence has accomploished nothing and is even less likely to result in changes now that the Supreme Court has reaffirmed its position.

In decision after carefully drafted decision, beginning with Brown in 1954, the high courts has held that segregated public schools are unconstitutional and that busing is one way-often the only way-to conteract deliberate segregation by school officials. The issue is not "quality education," as President Ford and others would like to have us believe; it's equal protection under the Constitution. The lawyer in Attorney General Edward Levi must have taken procedence over the politician when he wisely declined to intervene in the Boston case.

The latest Supreme Court action should discourage Justic Department intervention on behalf of the opposition in other pending busing challenges. As the Supreme Court said more than two decades ago: "The vitality of these constitutional principles cannot be allowed to yield simply because of disagreement with them." Neither violence nor presidential intervention is likely to change that.

IMPRACTICAL SOLUTION

Everyone alive has to breathe, and no one favors dirty air. Thus, the Clean Air act of 1970 was passed for the purpose of achieveing acceptable levels of ambient air quality by 1975. This simply means high air quality at ground level where people breathe.

The nation's electric utility companies support this objective, but oppose the means which the federal Environmental Protection Agency has chosen to achieve it. Sulfur emissions, under present rules, must be removed from electric generating plant flue gases, even though they may be emitted from stacks hundreds of feet above the ground and have not appreciable effect on the quality of the air at ground level. Such low-sulfur stack emissions cannot be achieved except by burning scarce and high-cost, low-surluf fuels or through the installation of sulfur oxide removal equipment, known as scrubbers. U. S. electric ompanies have spent more than $300 million in search of a practical solution to the sulfur emission problem. Scrubbers that work and which themselves do not contribute further to envinromental problems may someday be developed.

In the meanwhile, much of the nation's vast coal reserves are banned from use in power plantsd. Low-sulfur, imported fuel oils must be burned in generating stations in many parts of the country at high cost to electric power consumers. The Environmental Protection Agency itself estimates a 17 per cent increase in the cost of electricity to the consumer just to cover the use of sulfur removal devices in generating plants. Other authorities predict a 20 to 30 percent increase. Continuing inflation will boost these costs.

Congress should take action to clarify the meaning of its clean air legislation and permit the use of the nation's coal supplies in power plants designed and located in such a way as to meet ground level air quality standards. The alternative will be to aggravate fuel oil and natural gas supply problems, increase dependence on unreliable foreign supplies of these fuels and add electric power to the energy shortage already plaguing the nation. Clean air we CAN afford. Rigid and impractical methods of achieveing it, we CANNOT.

BUREAUCRATS WORSE THAN WEATHER

A strange article appeared recently in a Soviet magazine. The author scoffed at the oft-used excuse that bad weather is responsible for Russia's disastrous agricultural production and said that "bureaucrats do more harm than the coldest winter or worst drought."

Most of the winter wheat is sown in the fertile areas of southern Russia and the Ukraine, once known as the "bread-basket of Europe." The writer pointed out that "every third winter since 1891 has been as cold as the one which was credited with destroying much of the winter wheat crop in 1972." Yet he said "proper precautions and sowing would have saved more than 90 per cent of the lost crop in tha year."

Who is to blame? The journalist, an agriculture specialist, says it is bureaucratic bungling by those government officials responsible for agricultural planning.

The examples offered were devastating: lack of contour plowing (fields are plowed straight up and down, allowing water to run off and causing drought and dust storms); waste of fertilizers (only one farm in 30 plows fertilizer into the roots of winter wheat where it counts); lack of crop rotation; and wrong choice of seeds for the climate.

Everything appearing in print in the Soviet Union is censored, so publication of this article must have had high official support. Perhaps the size of this year's grain disaster--production of only 137 million tons of grain compared with a planned 215 million tons-- has prompted some Soviet officials to open a serious debate about their agricultural troubles, since the bureaucracy (the state) is the very heart of their economic system.

It should show Americans that anybody who advocates more government involvement in the means of production in this country should be aware of the sad state of bureaucratically operated agriculture in Communist Russia.

McGOVERNITES RUN CARTER CAMPAIGN--SMILE!

Where Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter really stands on the political issues of the day continues to remain a sort of blurry mystery. This former hard-line supporter of the Vietnam war now wants to grant a "full pardon" to draft dodgers and deserters. And though he nominated Sen. Henry Jackson (D.-Wash.) in the 1972 Democratic convention to help blunt the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern (D.-S.D.), Carter, it now turns out, has turned to McGovernites to help run his campaign.

James Wall, a Methodist clergyman and editor of the liberal Christian Century, was Illinois state chairman ofr McGovernin 1972, but he wound up as head of the incedibly successful Carter campaign in the state this time around.

"Erstwhile McGovernites dominate Carter' organization in Illinois and elsewhere (especially Florida, scene of his most impressive victory)," wrote columnists Evans and Novak just prior to the Illinois primary.

Though McGovern thoroughly distrusts Carter, Carter has apparently eagerly wooed the South Dakota senator, and the South Dakotan, say friends, might wind up backing Carter, especially if the Democratic race ends up as a face-off between Jackson and the one-time Georgia governor.

One reason he might get McGovern's blessing, it is said, is the presence of so many McGovern foot soldiers now in the Carter camp.

Carter began to woo the McGovernites last May when he invited millionaire Chicago lawyer Louis Manilow, a past econtributor to McGovern, to lunch at Maxim's in the Windy City. Manilow was so impressed, he became Carter's chief Illinois fund-raiser.

But where does Carter stand on national defense and detente? He continues to straddle. Just before the Illinois primary, Carter delivered a 30-minute speech before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, scoring Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's detente policies.

Carter, in phrases that could have been uttered by Ronald Reagan or Henry Jackson, said detente has allowed the Soviet Union to expand its "process of world revolution without the threat of nuclear war."

But just when one thought Carter was adopting a hard line that could turn off the McGovernites, he said the trouble with Nixon-Kissinger and Ford-Kissinger foreign policy is that it is based on "the assumption that the world is a jungle of competing national antagonism, where military muscle and econmic muscle are the only things that work."

He then said he favors "the objectives of detente" and he took a swing at Jackson, saying he rejects "the strident and bellicose voices of those who would have this country return to the days of the Cold War with the Soviet Union."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter: Piety to Politics

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

NEW YORK -- In the smoke-filled backrooms, the hard-bitten political veterans don't quite know how to take the two evangelists who are dominating the Democratic convention.

Jimmy Carter is an unabashed, born-again Southern Baptist, who has brought piety to politics. His most outspoken critic, California's Governor Jerry Brown, who studied to become a Jesuit priest, would like to impose poverty vows upon the government.

The politicians in the backrooms, skeptical by nature, find it hard to swallow all this sanctimony. But they aren't quite sure where the Pied Piping ends and the plain politicking begins.

Those who have rubbed Carter the wrong way have noticed that the engaging smile quickly fades and a cold glint is detectable in his eyes. And those who have gained entree to his strategy sessions report that he drops the apostolic approach and gets down to brass-tacks politics.

As one source close to Carter put it: "When Jimmy Carter talks about the Catholic bloc or the Jewish bloc, he is interested in their votes, not their souls."

Sources who have sat in on Jerry Brown's strategy sessions describe him, too, as a skillful, sagacious politician. Back in Sacramento, they have heard him discuss his "formula" for wooing liberals and conservatives at the same time.

He would "appoint women and minorities to high governmental posts," our sources recall his saying. "This should get excellent press play and win the support of women and minorities."

Simultaneously, he would court the conservatives, he said, by implementing "a program of fiscal conservatism and cutting welfare expenditures." It was a formula, our sources pointed out, that produced precisely the results he predicted.

Brown also has a reputation as a tax reformer and champion of the poor. But in the backrooms, sources remember his counseling: "The people who would benefit from tax reforms don't understand or appreciate what you're giving them, but the people who have their taxes raised know exactly what they're losing and will scream."

Yet for every cynic, there are a dozen who will attest to the sincerity and idealism of both Carter and Brown.

Declares an associate who knows Carter well: "Jimmy is basically a simple man, a man of character, who believes in God and isn't ashamed to say so."

Other intimates agree that Carter is acutely conscious of the need to revive the old American values and to restore public confidence in government. They say, for lifting the spirits and bolstering the faith of the American people.

Those who know Brown contend that he, too, is a man of character and conviction. He sleeps on a mattress on the floor of a $250-a-month apartment and rides around in a lowly Plymouth. This is no political gimmick, they say.

"When Jerry took vows of poverty," insists one intimate, "he meant it." Brown is equally sincere, say others, about imposing his own thriftiness on the government. "He really believes that the American people must become less profligate," says an associate. At the same time, Brown's supporters can tick off the programs he has pushed to improve the lot of the underprivileged.

Sums up his father, Pat Brown, himself a former California governor: "Life to Jerry is very interesting and very stimulating. He isn't like his father, who was driving and pushing all the time in pursuit of his ambitions."

Forgotten Man: Shunted into the shadows of Madison Square Garden is the hero of the 1972 convention and the victim of the Watergate tactics four years ago.

Sen. George McGovern, D.-S.D., who won the Democratic nomination last time, has had four years to reflect why he lost the election. He set down some of his private thoughts the other day in a letter to a friend.

"When I read about the current display of unity around Governor (Jimmy) Carter," wrote McGovern, "I think how deeply we wanted to achieve the same attitude four years ago ... Having won the nomination fairly and squarely, it was my fervent hope that we would have a few weeks time prior to the national convention to heal the wounds opened in that nomination effort.

"Regrettably, all the other candidates and some of the nation's top labor leaders joined in an effort to block my nomination in Miami ... A challenge was mounted to deny the winner-take-all California primary results which we had won. This meant that instead of a month of unifying efforts on my part, when I could visit with the defeated candidates, labor leaders and others, we had to fight for our lives right up until the moment of my nomination in Miami ...

"It was during this time of bitterness and confusion," reflected McGovern, "that we were denied the opportunity for the kind of healing that is now going on in the Democratic Party. It also deprived us of an opportunity to think quietly about the vice presidential selection, to interview the various candidates in advance and to check carefully on their backgrounds and acceptability."

He singled out Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me. "Two days after the California primary," wrote McGovern, "I met with Senator Muskie, who had been the early front-runner for the Democratic nomination, and urged him to support me for the nomination. I also asked him if he would be available to be my running mate.

"He seemed to lean in the direction of an endorsement at that time and did not reject the vice presidential inquiry ... But to my surprise, the next day he joined in the California challenge and became an active participant in the move to block my nomination."

A VICTORY FOR AMIN

WASHINGTON--While the Western press has been giving the Israeli army credit for pulling off one of the great military operations of modern times, no one has taken note of the fantastic success of Field Marshal Idi Amin Dada in driving out the invaders from his country in less than an hour.

According to a military spokesman in Entebbe, the Ugandan army repulsed the invasion of Entebee and drove off the hostile troops, forcing them to flee Uganda by plane. As of this writing, the Entebbe Airport is still in Ugandan hands and Israel suffered a terrible defeat when their soldiers had to return home in disgrace.

An admirer of Field Marshal Amin told me, "Everyone keeps talking about the Israeli success, but no one gives credit to the field marshal for rallying his troops and preventing Israel from taking over the country."

"I never thought of it that way, but it's true. If Amin still holds the Entebbe Airport, that means the Ugandans won," I said.

"Exactly. The field marshal has given Israel a thrashing they'll never forget. They'll think twice before they send commandos into his country again."

"Was the field marshal expecting them?"

"Of course, he was. Field Marshal Amin has one of the greatest military minds of the 20th century. He was aware that the Israelis would try something, and he had all his troops alerted."

"But why did he leave to attend a meeting of the Organization of African States if he knew the Israelis were going to invade his country?"

"To catch them off guard. That was part of the plan. The Israelis were lulled into a false sense of security when they saw Amin boarding a plane for the OAS conference. 'Big Daddy' knew that as soon as he left the Israelis would put their disastrous plan into effect."

"And he was right. The ruse worked."

"It certainly did. The Israelis flew their commandos 2,600 miles to the Entebbe Airport and found themselves surrounded by crack Ugandan groops. They had no choice but to pick up the hostages and high-tail it out of there, or they would have been annihilated."

"Where was Big Daddy while all this was going on?"

"The Israelis thought he was at the OAS conference, but he was at his command post in his bunker, directing the defense of the airport."

"That was another ruse the field marshal pulled off. He knew the Israelis wanted him to send up his fighter planes so they could shoot them down. So he kept his fighters on the ground and gave his pilots the night off. This threw the Israeli strategy completely off, and they were forced to blow up the field marshal's planes on the ground. The Israelis were so busy blowing up Big Daddy's planes they never had time to capture the airport."

"I never thought of it that way, but when you look back on it, it was a military stroke of genius," I said in admiration.

"The field marshal counted on surprise, deception and reading the enemy's mind. He knew that he had to hold the airport at all costs. When the Israelis realized what they were up against, the fled in disarray."

"I guess they'll be studying Big Daddy's brilliant defense in military schools all over the world. I hope he at least gets a medal for it."

"President Amin has ordered a new medal to be struck for Field Marshal Amin and will present it to him at the palace as soon as Big Daddy considers it safe to leave his bunker."

Barbara Jordan steals the show

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Jordan said she saw something "different and special" about this 37th convention of Democrats, and it was thunderously clear it felt the same about her.

The lady simply stole the show, wresting the hearts and hurrahs of opening night from the likes of the host mayor and governor, and even fellow keynoter John Glenn — whose performance, by contrast, hardly seemed calculated to enhance his previously touted chances for becoming Jimmy Carter's running mate.

Neither Glenn nor anyone else evoked the rapt attention or the raucous tribute that the convention bestowed upon this organ-voiced black congresswoman from Houston.

And it was a salute she returned with customary eloquence. Never before, she noted, had a black keynoted a national political convention. But "the past notwithstanding, a Barbara Jordan is before you tonight. This is one additional bit of evidence that the American Dream need not forever be deferred."

She was greeted with a standing ovation that eclipsed two minutes. Just as notably, the delegates ceased the milling and the drone which had faced other speakers. Now, the noise they made, cheers, applause and even some foot-stomping, was solely for Barbara Jordan.

When she finished, she was called back to the podium by an ovation that continued despite her exit. A security guard and others on the podium asked her for her autograph.

"We want Barbara, we want Barbara," the crowd chanted.

Even during her address, a hastily written sign had been hoisted in the South Carolina delegation: "Jordan VP." Some had suggested that possibility even earlier, but Miss Jordan had said she didn't think Carter ever seriously considered her.

But on this night she eschewed any direct attacks on the Republican opposition.

Instead, she warned that the nation was in danger of becoming "a collection of interest groups, each seeking to fulfill private dreams.

"We are a people in a quandary about the present. We are a people in search of our future. We are a people in search of a national community.

"We must provide the people with a vision of the future that is attainable. We must strike a balance between the idea that the government can do everything and the belief that the government should do nothing," she said.

Carter responsive to Demo women

NEW YORK (AP) — Prominent Democratic women went to Jimmy Carter and came away satisfied he will give them a big share of the Washington action if he is elected president this fall.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., who led a delegation of women to meet with Carter on Monday, said he pledged himself to naming women to high posts in his administration and to considering women for any Supreme Court vacancy.

Carter's meeting with representatives of the National Women's Political Caucus came after it made plans to make a fight on women's issues on the floor of the Democratic National Convention.

The caucus is scheduled to vote today on a compromise worked out with Carter on the specific issue of representation of the sexes at the 1980 party convention.

Militant feminists demanding a mandatory 50-50 split between men and women are urging defeat of the compromise and a vote on the issue on the convention floor.

Until the convention, the caucus had been demanding mandatory equal representation in 1980, but the compromise worked out Monday falls short of that.

Instead, in 1980 and in a planned 1978 miniparty convention, the national party is committed to "encourage and assist" state parties to achieve equal sexual representation.

Rep. Abzug said that language along with Carter's commitment to seek out women for both his campaign staff and his administration marked a "major step forward" for the progress of women in American economic and political life.

Pat Nixon will have complete recovery

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon's doctor says the former first lady will completely recover from her recent stroke but that her husband and daughters will have to guard her from the depression that often afflicts stroke victims.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Monday that Mrs. Nixon should be out of the hospital within a week to 10 days and should fully recover from the partial paralysis brought on by last week's stroke.

Although the 64-year-old wife of former President Richard M. Nixon remains in serious condition, Lungren said slurring of her speech has diminished and that her blood pressure is under control.

"From the standpoint of function," said Dr. Stanely van den Noort, a neurologist who was consulted by Lungren, "I believe she is going to have full recovery.... That's our hope and belief."

He added, however, that most stroke victims "usually have some minor problems associated with fatigue."

Lungren said that if Mrs. Nixon regains full use of her limbs "she will probably never have another stroke."

Nixon, his daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband, David, visited Mrs. Nixon at the hospital twice Monday after she had been moved from the critical care unit to a general treatment area on another floor.

Lungren said the move means Mrs. Nixon will begin a "stepped up" exercise routine. She has been performing simple exercises and taking a few steps for the past several days.

School helps stutterers straighten their speech

WINTER PARK, FLA. — The Emery Institute, founded on the ashes of a century-old family affliction, is celebrating its 41st anniversary this bicentennial year as the nation's only correspondence school for stammerers and stutterers.

The non-profit school was established in 1935 by a woman who developed a self-help course of instruction to cure her son of the stuttering that had plagued her family for 100 years.

She is 83-year-old Eleanor Weston Emery, he Ted Emery Jr., 55. Since then, more than 2,000 stutters have taken the course.

Mrs. Emery's eldest brother was a stammerer. She herself stammered so badly she could obtain no formal education and had to do with private tutors and several years abroad. Two other sons never stuttered.

Her first son, Ted, now institute president, was growing up when she realized no one could cure her—that she had to help herself and her son. She now speaks clearly. Ted, who still hesitates sometimes, says he was the world's worst stammerer while in junior high school.

The Emerys conduct the nonprofit Emery Institute here, incorporated under Florida law and so recognized by the U.S. Treasury Department. Both are certified speech pathologists by the Florida Commissioner of Education.

"Strangely," Mrs. Emery says, "A stammerer can talk perfectly when he is alone, when very angry, usually while singing or when absolutely unconscious of self. He can always talk to a pet without stammering when he is alone with it.

"We often meet people who say they cured themselves but can't quite tell how. In nearly every instance there was an objective they wished to reach that required normal speech, and eventually they gained sufficient control and coordination to achieve it.

"Mental control which the stammerer gains by completing tedious tasks is very beneficial. This can be used with children and adults. However, you must never mention speech or stammering to a child. Parent and teacher must help children be more orderly in everything they do. If the child stammers, pay no attention. If he speaks correctly, notice him. But he must never be conscious that he is being aided.

"With adults, the approach is direct. Adults must have a will to help themselves."

Ted said stammering could be as disastrous as cancer because it could be so confusing, terrorizing and humiliating it might run a person's physical and emotional makeup.

"I remember falling to the floor in utter helplessness trying to say something when I was 13," he said.

He said the suicide rate among sufferers is high; that stammerers make up about one per cent of the nation's population—more than the blind and insane combined.

"There are four male stutterers to every female," he said. "I don't know why this is unless the woman usually wants to talk so much she can't be bothered with stammering."

Said Mrs. Emery: "Stammerers are found among the types that produce geniuses. Never among the plodders who have been developing habits of control since babyhood. The stammerer's mind is quick and his interest keen. But he has a dislike for sustained effort or routine. He will not stick to a subject long enough to master it."

The cause of stuttering, both say, is fear—perhaps a fear of doing or saying something wrong "But basically just plain fear."

Ted Emery said a child could normally be cured in less than a year; a teenager or adult within a year. A charge is made for the Emery correspondence courses for those who can pay; a scholarship plan is offered those stutterers without funds.

The system when instituted in one county school system for five years was tried on 346 students. Of these 207 were permanently corrected, 77 improved and only 6 failed to gain.

The Emerys say that about 90 per cent of their cases who complete the ten-lesson correspondence course have been cured. Those who are not helped are offered a tuition refund.

"Stammering is only the bat habit of thinking how to speak," Ted says. "Replacing that with the good habit of concentrating on the thought being expressed does the work."

St. Joe's first police woman: 'there's always something new'

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Nearly two years ago, Brenda Elliott became St. Joseph's first policewoman.

She still has the distinction of being the only woman on the force and she still likes her job.

"There's always something new or a new twist to an old story," she said. "Even working inside at the desk can be fascinating, talking to people, trying to help them solve their problems."

Miss Elliott joined the force after receiving a degree in criminal justice administration at Central Missouri State University and then started 320 hours of basic training for the city's rookie policemen.

She has spent all her time working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift, which she said she likes because it is the busiest. Being single is an advantage, she said, because she doesn't have to face the daily problems of a family living on different schedules.

"I've been very lucky, too," she said. "Most things have worked out well for me. There haven't been many tough situations, times when I was afraid someone was going to get hurt. Those are the things that chill your blood, but I suppose that the close calls are good preparation for the time when something tragic could happen."

She sometimes works at police headquarters, answering calls or acting as a jailer, but most of her work is on regular patrol with a partner.

"Many calls can be handled over the telephone," Miss Elliott said. "Some people just want to know what they can do about a problem or just want to talk to someone. Sometimes it's necessary to keep the person on the phone until a police car can get there. It's amazing how just a little talk will help."

She appears to have gained the respect of her fellow officers.

"I frankly didn't think she'd make it at first," one veteran officer said. "The gaff she's had to take from the guys and from some of the public and, well, sometimes our language isn't what it should be. But she's a good officer. Maybe I shouldn't say it, but she's just like one of the men."

Supervisors have allowed her to handle a variety of touchy problems, such as molestations, possible rapes, racial disputes and juvenile cases, and Police Chief Glenn Thomas has assigned her to speak for the department at meetings of various civic, religious and educational groups.

Should fiance know about her nose job?

Dear Ann Landers: An aunt of mine is driving me crazy. I plan to be married in a few months. She thinks it is very important that I tell my fiance I had rhinoplasty--better known as a nose job.

I don't think it's any of his business. Aunt Maricia insists that it would be unfair not to tell him. And wait till you get a load of the reason. She is afraid our children might be born with a schnozz like my old one and my husband would wonder who the father is. (I now have a little turned-up nose, and his nose is small also.)

What is your opinion of the situation?-- Nobody nose The Trouble I've Seen

Dear Trouble: The decsion should be yours, but I see no reason for not telling him. After all, he fell in love with you, not your nose.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is a 19-year-old son. He has never been in any kind of trouble, works every day and pays board and room.

Things began to change around here last October when Phil took up with a 14- year-old girl. She looks 17, is very mature physically but not mentally . Phil is at Dolly's house every night of the week. They seldom go to a movie or out with friends. Their only interest is each other.

Dolly seems like a nice girl but she forgets to wash her hands before meals and never uses a napkin. When Phil tries to hold her chair to help her get seated, she says, "I'm not crippled. I can seat myself." (No manners whatsoever.)

Last week she asked for permission to stay here for the weekend while her parents were out of town. I said O.K. Ann, the girl didn't bring a thing with her, not even a toothbrush. She slept with my daughter who offered her a nightgown. Her reply was, "I hate those things."

Phil bought a camper and plans to take Dolly camping every weekend. I don't know what this girl's parents are thinking about. Will you please comment?--Plenty Worried

Dear P.L.: Phil has obviously gone gaga over this Dolly and there is nothing you can (or should) do about it. He is 19--old enough to know his own mind--such as it is.

Your son should be aware, however, of the legal ramifications. In many states a 14-year-old girl is considered a child. Under certain circustances he could get into legal trouble for contributing to her delinquency.

The girls sounds pathetically ignorant and completely without parental guidance. I hope Phil will assume the responsibility to see that his Dolly doesn't get preganant.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is a great escape valve for people who need to sound off. May I blow my top? Thank you.

Dear "Gentlemen" Commuters: Although you insist Women's Lib has killed chivalry, it doesn't mean good manners and common sense are also dead. How can you sit in that seat on the bus while a woman eight months pregnant stands, being jostled faround for 45 minutes? Doesn't it bother you when a 60-plus, grandmotherly type faints from standing in a crowded aisle, in stifling heat, while you sit next to a breezy window? How do you think you look shoving women and children aside in your rush to get on the bus and grab a seat? If you don't know, I can tell you in a word. Lousy,-- Turned Off In DC.

Dear D.C.: I can't improve on your one-word answer. Thank you.

Barbara Jordan steals the show

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Jordan said she saw something "different and special" about this 37th convention of Democrats, and it was thunderously clear it felt the same about her.

The lady simply stole the show, wresting the hearts and hurrahs of opening night from the likes of the host mayor and governor, and even fellow keynoter John Glenn — whose performance, by contrast, hardly seemed calculated to enhance his previously touted chances for becoming Jimmy Carter's running mate.

Neither Glenn nor anyone else evoked the rapt attention or the raucous tribute that the convention bestowed upon this organ-voiced black congresswoman from Houston.

And it was a salute she returned with customary eloquence. Never before, she noted, had a black keynoted a national political convention. But "the past notwithstanding, a Barbara Jordan is before you tonight. This is one additional bit of evidence that the American Dream need not forever be deferred."

She was greeted with a standing ovation that eclipsed two minutes. Just as notably, the delegates ceased the milling and the drone which had faced other speakers. Now, the noise they made, cheers, applause and even some foot-stomping, was solely for Barbara Jordan.

When she finished, she was called back to the podium by an ovation that continued despite her exit. A security guard and others on the podium asked her for her autograph.

"We want Barbara, we want Barbara," the crowd chanted.

Even during her address, a hastily written sign had been hoisted in the South Carolina delegation: "Jordan VP." Some had suggested that possibility even earlier, but Miss Jordan had said she didn't think Carter ever seriously considered her.

But on this night she eschewed any direct attacks on the Republican opposition.

Instead, she warned that the nation was in danger of becoming "a collection of interest groups, each seeking to fulfill private dreams.

"We are a people in a quandary about the present. We are a people in search of our future. We are a people in search of a national community.

"We must provide the people with a vision of the future that is attainable. We must strike a balance between the idea that the government can do everything and the belief that the government should do nothing," she said.

Carter responsive to Demo women

NEW YORK (AP) — Prominent Democratic women went to Jimmy Carter and came away satisfied he will give them a big share of the Washington action if he is elected president this fall.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., who led a delegation of women to meet with Carter on Monday, said he pledged himself to naming women to high posts in his administration and to considering women for any Supreme Court vacancy.

Carter's meeting with representatives of the National Women's Political Caucus came after it made plans to make a fight on women's issues on the floor of the Democratic National Convention.

The caucus is scheduled to vote today on a compromise worked out with Carter on the specific issue of representation of the sexes at the 1980 party convention.

Militant feminists demanding a mandatory 50-50 split between men and women are urging defeat of the compromise and a vote on the issue on the convention floor.

Until the convention, the caucus had been demanding mandatory equal representation in 1980, but the compromise worked out Monday falls short of that.

Instead, in 1980 and in a planned 1978 miniparty convention, the national party is committed to "encourage and assist" state parties to achieve equal sexual representation.

Rep. Abzug said that language along with Carter's commitment to seek out women for both his campaign staff and his administration marked a "major step forward" for the progress of women in American economic and political life.

Pat Nixon will have complete recovery

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon's doctor says the former first lady will completely recover from her recent stroke but that her husband and daughters will have to guard her from the depression that often afflicts stroke victims.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Monday that Mrs. Nixon should be out of the hospital within a week to 10 days and should fully recover from the partial paralysis brought on by last week's stroke.

Although the 64-year-old wife of former President Richard M. Nixon remains in serious condition, Lungren said slurring of her speech has diminished and that her blood pressure is under control.

"From the standpoint of function," said Dr. Stanely van den Noort, a neurologist who was consulted by Lungren, "I believe she is going to have full recovery.... That's our hope and belief."

He added, however, that most stroke victims "usually have some minor problems associated with fatigue."

Lungren said that if Mrs. Nixon regains full use of her limbs "she will probably never have another stroke."

Nixon, his daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband, David, visited Mrs. Nixon at the hospital twice Monday after she had been moved from the critical care unit to a general treatment area on another floor.

Lungren said the move means Mrs. Nixon will begin a "stepped up" exercise routine. She has been performing simple exercises and taking a few steps for the past several days.

School helps stutterers straighten their speech

WINTER PARK, FLA. — The Emery Institute, founded on the ashes of a century-old family affliction, is celebrating its 41st anniversary this bicentennial year as the nation's only correspondence school for stammerers and stutterers.

The non-profit school was established in 1935 by a woman who developed a self-help course of instruction to cure her son of the stuttering that had plagued her family for 100 years.

She is 83-year-old Eleanor Weston Emery, he Ted Emery Jr., 55. Since then, more than 2,000 stutters have taken the course.

Mrs. Emery's eldest brother was a stammerer. She herself stammered so badly she could obtain no formal education and had to do with private tutors and several years abroad. Two other sons never stuttered.

Her first son, Ted, now institute president, was growing up when she realized no one could cure her—that she had to help herself and her son. She now speaks clearly. Ted, who still hesitates sometimes, says he was the world's worst stammerer while in junior high school.

The Emerys conduct the nonprofit Emery Institute here, incorporated under Florida law and so recognized by the U.S. Treasury Department. Both are certified speech pathologists by the Florida Commissioner of Education.

"Strangely," Mrs. Emery says, "A stammerer can talk perfectly when he is alone, when very angry, usually while singing or when absolutely unconscious of self. He can always talk to a pet without stammering when he is alone with it.

"We often meet people who say they cured themselves but can't quite tell how. In nearly every instance there was an objective they wished to reach that required normal speech, and eventually they gained sufficient control and coordination to achieve it.

"Mental control which the stammerer gains by completing tedious tasks is very beneficial. This can be used with children and adults. However, you must never mention speech or stammering to a child. Parent and teacher must help children be more orderly in everything they do. If the child stammers, pay no attention. If he speaks correctly, notice him. But he must never be conscious that he is being aided.

"With adults, the approach is direct. Adults must have a will to help themselves."

Ted said stammering could be as disastrous as cancer because it could be so confusing, terrorizing and humiliating it might run a person's physical and emotional makeup.

"I remember falling to the floor in utter helplessness trying to say something when I was 13," he said.

He said the suicide rate among sufferers is high; that stammerers make up about one per cent of the nation's population—more than the blind and insane combined.

"There are four male stutterers to every female," he said. "I don't know why this is unless the woman usually wants to talk so much she can't be bothered with stammering."

Said Mrs. Emery: "Stammerers are found among the types that produce geniuses. Never among the plodders who have been developing habits of control since babyhood. The stammerer's mind is quick and his interest keen. But he has a dislike for sustained effort or routine. He will not stick to a subject long enough to master it."

The cause of stuttering, both say, is fear—perhaps a fear of doing or saying something wrong "But basically just plain fear."

Ted Emery said a child could normally be cured in less than a year; a teenager or adult within a year. A charge is made for the Emery correspondence courses for those who can pay; a scholarship plan is offered those stutterers without funds.

The system when instituted in one county school system for five years was tried on 346 students. Of these 207 were permanently corrected, 77 improved and only 6 failed to gain.

The Emerys say that about 90 per cent of their cases who complete the ten-lesson correspondence course have been cured. Those who are not helped are offered a tuition refund.

"Stammering is only the bat habit of thinking how to speak," Ted says. "Replacing that with the good habit of concentrating on the thought being expressed does the work."

The Panama hat was popularized by Theodore Roosevelt on his visits to his pet construction project — the Panama Canal. Panama hats are made not in Panama, but in Ecuador of fine jipijapa straw.

St. Joe's first police woman: 'there's always something new'

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Nearly two years ago, Brenda Elliott became St. Joseph's first policewoman.

She still has the distinction of being the only woman on the force and she still likes her job.

"There's always something new or a new twist to an old story," she said. "Even working inside at the desk can be fascinating, talking to people, trying to help them solve their problems."

Miss Elliott joined the force after receiving a degree in criminal justice administration at Central Missouri State University and then started 320 hours of basic training for the city's rookie policemen.

She has spent all her time working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift, which she said she likes because it is the busiest. Being single is an advantage, she said, because she doesn't have to face the daily problems of a family living on different schedules.

"I've been very lucky, too," she said. "Most things have worked out well for me. There haven't been many tough situations, times when I was afraid someone was going to get hurt. Those are the things that chill your blood, but I suppose that the close calls are good preparation for the time when something tragic could happen."

She sometimes works at police headquarters, answering calls or acting as a jailer, but most of her work is on regular patrol with a partner.

"Many calls can be handled over the telephone," Miss Elliott said. "Some people just want to know what they can do about a problem or just want to talk to someone. Sometimes it's necessary to keep the person on the phone until a police car can get there. It's amazing how just a little talk will help."

She appears to have gained the respect of her fellow officers.

"I frankly didn't think she'd make it at first," one veteran officer said. "The gaff she's had to take from the guys and from some of the public and, well, sometimes our language isn't what it should be. But she's a good officer. Maybe I shouldn't say it, but she's just like one of the men."

Supervisors have allowed her to handle a variety of touchy problems, such as molestations, possible rapes, racial disputes and juvenile cases, and Police Chief Glenn Thomas has assigned her to speak for the department at meetings of various civic, religious and educational groups.

Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres will start on the mound for the National League tonight at the All-Star Game in Philadelphia. Jones has won 16 games for the Padres this season to break the National League record for the most wins before the All-Star Game. (AP Wirephoto)

61,000 expected in Philadelphia

All-Star Game lineups named

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, two youngsters in a hurry, are the starting pitchers tonight in the 47th All+Star Game,

President Ford will join 61,-000 fans at Veterans Stadium who will attend the game, which will be viewed by a national television audience.

"There really are no words to describe it," the 21-year-old Fidrych said as the two teams held brief workouts Monday. "My body is feeling it but it's hard to get the words across. I thought that maybe I would get in an inning, but starting...Wow!"

With Fidrych and the 26-yearold Jones, the All+Star Game has two young pitchers who dash madly from dugout to mound, and mound to dugout. They not only run fast, they pitch well.

Jones, a sinker-ball specialist, has won 16 games at the All+Star break, a National League record. His fast ball takes a long time to get to the plate, but he pitches fast games because he runs to and from the mound and seldom issues a walk. Jones won 20 last year and pitched 1 2-3 innings to gain a save in last year's AllStar game.

"I'm not at all embarrassed when people comment about how slow I throw," he said Monday as he posed with Fidrych for traditional pictures. "If I do my job well, it will frustrate a hitter. On Astroturf, I have to be more careful. My success is all a matter of where I place the pitches."

Fidrych is more colorful and the media favorite. He not only races to his position and back, he talks to the ball, smooths the dirt on the mound from his knees, shakes hands with infielders who make good plays and, because of his nervous energy, is a cheerleader tye.

He lost 1-0 Friday night. His only other loss in a 9-2 season was 2-0. He has completed every game but one.

Asked if his friends consider him kooky, he told newsmen: "No, they're like me, too."

Baseball settlement reached

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It seems only appropriate that after 13 months of haggling, peace should come to baseball in the City of Brotherly Love.

But, like any truce, the agreement reached Monday between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee had its price. Both sides gave ground to reach the settlement.

Although neither management nor the union would reveal any terms of the pact, these key elements of the four-year agreement were learned:

—A player will have the right to demand a trade after having played in the majors for five years. He will have a veto right over six clubs. If he is not traded, he will become a free agent.

—Players who become free agents, including those now governed by the Andy Messersmith decision, will be able to negotiate with a maximum of 12 teams, starting with the inverse order of the previous season standings.

Each club will be limited in the number of free agents it can sign, being permitted one if the free-agent pool totals one to 14. However, a club will be able to sign as many free agents as it might lose.

—The only compensation for a lost player will be draft choices. If one of the 12 lowest teams signs a player, it would lose its second choice in the next draft of college and high school players to the player's former team. If one of the top 12 teams signs a player, it would forfeit its No. 1 draft choice.

—Players can take their salary differences to arbitration as they did before the 1974 season. However, if a player is eligible to become a free agent, his salary dispute can go to arbitration only by mutual consent of the player and the club.

The players also had to agree to stay five years with their new teams once they exercised their free agent option.

The new contract also called for a 29 per cent increase in pension plan contributions by management.

But the pact did not solve baseball's "one-and-one" dilemma created when pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally won free agent status last winter under an arbitrator's decision after completing the 1975 season without signing contracts.

The 40 or so unsigned major league players still are considered to be "playing out their options," and unless they sign by October they will be free agents when the season ends. Other players who signed single or multi-year contrcts may still exercise their options at the conclusion of those pacts, should they choose to move elsewhere.

The difference now, however, is that with an agreement, management has something of a deadline hanging over the players. Once they exercise or pass up that single option chance, the players will be tied to their teams for various lengths of time.

But, of course, that six-year point could be reached quickly for individual players, depending on when they came to the majors. So baseball still faces a situation which could find many players moving around freely every year.

That element and the continued 1-1 factor apparently has left some owners less than thrilled with the agreement which has the unanimous support of the Player Relations Committee and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Ziegenhorn hands Ryan first loss of season

Ziegenhorn Insurance handed Ryan Construction their first loss of the season in the American League to highlight Monday night's Sikeston Little League action at the complex.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Ziegenhorn scored seven times in the first inning and then held on in the late innings to stop previously undefeated Ryan Construction 13-12. Brad Priday, Donnie Alford and Louie Ward had three hits each for Ziegenhorn, who were outhit by Ryan 16-12. Marty Allen and Jimmy McPherson had three hits for the losers. Chuck Hampton was the winning pitcher, while McPherson got the loss.

Nunnelee bombed Righter Trucking 23-9 in the other game. Nunnelee crossed the plate nine times in the first inning, then chalked up seven more in both the third and fourth frames. Kenneth Deal and Eugene Kimball ripped three basehits apiece, with Deal getting credit for the victory.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Lewis Furniture scored four runs in the bottom of the fourth to break a scoreless deadlock, but Kiwanis came right back in the top of the fifth to cross the plate five times and went on to take a 6-4 victory. Nick Garner outhurled Tim Evans to get the win. Evans had a pair of hits for Lewis Furniture.

The Lions scored in every inning as they ripped the Jaycees 15-2. The winners did their scoring with the benefit of only three hits, the same as the losers.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

Michael Cook banged out two hits, including a two-run homer in the fourth, as Malone and Hyde downed Rotary 8-4. Cook was the winning pitcher as well as the game's top batsman, hurling a two-hitter.

David Pollard went the distance on the mound and banged out three hits as the Daily Standard romped over Flower Basket 23-2. Lorne White also had three hits.

Peacemaker Krumm hopes to bring about compromise

MONTREAL (AP) — Peace hopes in the great Olympics dispute rested today on the shoulders of Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a man with a reputation for patching up other people's quarrels.

Krumm and his committee took over the role of mediators and became the central figures in the drama of the Taiwanese athletes who are shut out of Canada for political reasons.

The Americans were talking with the Canadian External Affairs Ministry in Ottawa and the Taiwanese officials in the Olympic Village in Montreal.

Olympic sources gave them a slim chance of success. But it was a last gasp effort to get the Taiwanese into the Games, opening Saturday, and to restore the battered image of the Olympic charter.

"We are working like the dickens to get both sides in this dispute to concede a little," Kumm said.

"The future of the Games depend on our success. Instead of friendly athletic competition between athletes, the Olympics have become a political contest between countries."

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) recognizes the national Olympic committee of Taiwan under the name of the Republic of China — a name which offends the Communist Chinese in Peking.

Canada, clearly concerned about its big wheat export trade with Peking, refused to allow the Taiwanese to enter the country unless they agreed to drop the "Republic of China" label and abandon their national flag.

The IOC executive board failed to make any impression on the Canadians. It tried asking the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade under the Olympic flag and the IOC insignia, but the Taiwanese said no.

Unless one side or another gives way, the Taiwanese will be the first athletes ever shut out of an Olympic host country because of politics. Krumm's men moved into the dispute after an appeal by President Ford in Washington.

Krumm, admitting no great progress was made in his peace moves Monday, said: "We shall be going back to both sides today, and we will aim to get some measure of agreement in time for the full session of the IOC."

61,000 expected in Philadelphia

All-Star Game lineups named

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, two youngsters in a hurry, are the starting pitchers tonight in the 47th All+Star Game,

President Ford will join 61,-000 fans at Veterans Stadium who will attend the game, which will be viewed by a national television audience.

"There really are no words to describe it," the 21-year-old Fidrych said as the two teams held brief workouts Monday. "My body is feeling it but it's hard to get the words across. I thought that maybe I would get in an inning, but starting...Wow!"

With Fidrych and the 26-yearold Jones, the All+Star Game has two young pitchers who dash madly from dugout to mound, and mound to dugout. They not only run fast, they pitch well.

Jones, a sinker-ball specialist, has won 16 games at the All+Star break, a National League record. His fast ball takes a long time to get to the plate, but he pitches fast games because he runs to and from the mound and seldom issues a walk. Jones won 20 last year and pitched 1 2-3 innings to gain a save in last year's AllStar game.

"I'm not at all embarrassed when people comment about how slow I throw," he said Monday as he posed with Fidrych for traditional pictures. "If I do my job well, it will frustrate a hitter. On Astroturf, I have to be more careful. My success is all a matter of where I place the pitches."

Fidrych is more colorful and the media favorite. He not only races to his position and back, he talks to the ball, smooths the dirt on the mound from his knees, shakes hands with infielders who make good plays and, because of his nervous energy, is a cheerleader tye.

He lost 1-0 Friday night. His only other loss in a 9-2 season was 2-0. He has completed every game but one.

Asked if his friends consider him kooky, he told newsmen: "No, they're like me, too."

Baseball settlement reached

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It seems only appropriate that after 13 months of haggling, peace should come to baseball in the City of Brotherly Love.

But, like any truce, the agreement reached Monday between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee had its price. Both sides gave ground to reach the settlement.

Although neither management nor the union would reveal any terms of the pact, these key elements of the four-year agreement were learned:

—A player will have the right to demand a trade after having played in the majors for five years. He will have a veto right over six clubs. If he is not traded, he will become a free agent.

—Players who become free agents, including those now governed by the Andy Messersmith decision, will be able to negotiate with a maximum of 12 teams, starting with the inverse order of the previous season standings.

Each club will be limited in the number of free agents it can sign, being permitted one if the free-agent pool totals one to 14. However, a club will be able to sign as many free agents as it might lose.

—The only compensation for a lost player will be draft choices. If one of the 12 lowest teams signs a player, it would lose its second choice in the next draft of college and high school players to the player's former team. If one of the top 12 teams signs a player, it would forfeit its No. 1 draft choice.

—Players can take their salary differences to arbitration as they did before the 1974 season. However, if a player is eligible to become a free agent, his salary dispute can go to arbitration only by mutual consent of the player and the club.

The players also had to agree to stay five years with their new teams once they exercised their free agent option.

The new contract also called for a 29 per cent increase in pension plan contributions by management.

But the pact did not solve baseball's "one-and-one" dilemma created when pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally won free agent status last winter under an arbitrator's decision after completing the 1975 season without signing contracts.

The 40 or so unsigned major league players still are considered to be "playing out their options," and unless they sign by October they will be free agents when the season ends. Other players who signed single or multi-year contrcts may still exercise their options at the conclusion of those pacts, should they choose to move elsewhere.

The difference now, however, is that with an agreement, management has something of a deadline hanging over the players. Once they exercise or pass up that single option chance, the players will be tied to their teams for various lengths of time.

But, of course, that six-year point could be reached quickly for individual players, depending on when they came to the majors. So baseball still faces a situation which could find many players moving around freely every year.

That element and the continued 1-1 factor apparently has left some owners less than thrilled with the agreement which has the unanimous support of the Player Relations Committee and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Ziegenhorn hands Ryan first loss of season

Ziegenhorn Insurance handed Ryan Construction their first loss of the season in the American League to highlight Monday night's Sikeston Little League action at the complex.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Ziegenhorn scored seven times in the first inning and then held on in the late innings to stop previously undefeated Ryan Construction 13-12. Brad Priday, Donnie Alford and Louie Ward had three hits each for Ziegenhorn, who were outhit by Ryan 16-12. Marty Allen and Jimmy McPherson had three hits for the losers. Chuck Hampton was the winning pitcher, while McPherson got the loss.

Nunnelee bombed Righter Trucking 23-9 in the other game. Nunnelee crossed the plate nine times in the first inning, then chalked up seven more in both the third and fourth frames. Kenneth Deal and Eugene Kimball ripped three basehits apiece, with Deal getting credit for the victory.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Lewis Furniture scored four runs in the bottom of the fourth to break a scoreless deadlock, but Kiwanis came right back in the top of the fifth to cross the plate five times and went on to take a 6-4 victory. Nick Garner outhurled Tim Evans to get the win. Evans had a pair of hits for Lewis Furniture.

The Lions scored in every inning as they ripped the Jaycees 15-2. The winners did their scoring with the benefit of only three hits, the same as the losers.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

Michael Cook banged out two hits, including a two-run homer in the fourth, as Malone and Hyde downed Rotary 8-4. Cook was the winning pitcher as well as the game's top batsman, hurling a two-hitter.

David Pollard went the distance on the mound and banged out three hits as the Daily Standard romped over Flower Basket 23-2. Lorne White also had three hits.

Peacemaker Krumm hopes to bring about compromise

MONTREAL (AP) — Peace hopes in the great Olympics dispute rested today on the shoulders of Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a man with a reputation for patching up other people's quarrels.

Krumm and his committee took over the role of mediators and became the central figures in the drama of the Taiwanese athletes who are shut out of Canada for political reasons.

The Americans were talking with the Canadian External Affairs Ministry in Ottawa and the Taiwanese officials in the Olympic Village in Montreal.

Olympic sources gave them a slim chance of success. But it was a last gasp effort to get the Taiwanese into the Games, opening Saturday, and to restore the battered image of the Olympic charter.

"We are working like the dickens to get both sides in this dispute to concede a little," Kumm said.

"The future of the Games depend on our success. Instead of friendly athletic competition between athletes, the Olympics have become a political contest between countries."

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) recognizes the national Olympic committee of Taiwan under the name of the Republic of China — a name which offends the Communist Chinese in Peking.

Canada, clearly concerned about its big wheat export trade with Peking, refused to allow the Taiwanese to enter the country unless they agreed to drop the "Republic of China" label and abandon their national flag.

The IOC executive board failed to make any impression on the Canadians. It tried asking the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade under the Olympic flag and the IOC insignia, but the Taiwanese said no.

Unless one side or another gives way, the Taiwanese will be the first athletes ever shut out of an Olympic host country because of politics. Krumm's men moved into the dispute after an appeal by President Ford in Washington.

Krumm, admitting no great progress was made in his peace moves Monday, said: "We shall be going back to both sides today, and we will aim to get some measure of agreement in time for the full session of the IOC."

Bill Adamson of Fisk, a regular performer at the Sikeston Speedway, has been driving competitively for about twelve years. Bill drives a 1972 Chevelle with a 350 engine.

Kiwanis wins close one from Daily Standard

Major Division

Kiwanis edged Daily Standard in a high scoring contest 12-11 and First National won a high scoring game also, beating Mid-Delta 17-12.

Daily Standard and Kiwanis started out slowly but picked up the pace as the game progressed. Daily Standard took a 1-0 lead but fell back 2-1 after the first inning. Kiwanis kept the pressure on by adding four more in the second inning before Daily Standard came to life in the third inning with six runs. Kiwanis led 11-8 after six innings but Daily Standard tied the game in the top of the seventh with three runs. Kiwanis scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Tera Ross had a double and triple for Daily Standard. Dawn Hurley belted her fourth homer of the season for Kiwanis.

First National came from a 10-2 deficit to score eight runs in the third inning to pull out their game against Mid-Delta.

Mid-Delta had scored two runs in the first and seven in the second and looked as if they were going to run away with the game.

First National rallied for five runs in the last two innings to win.

Senior Division

Strickland scored 18 runs in the top half of the first inning and walked over hapless Eagles 32-5. Strickland belted out 27 hits to 10 for Eagles. Patty Holt was the leading hitter in the game with 5-for-5.

Minor Division

First National overwhelmed Williams Bros. Const. 22-4 on the strength of 15 runs in the first inning of play. Williams Bros. pitching and defense couldn't control First National as they gave up 24 runs on only nine hits. Williams had only one hit in the game by Lawrence.

JBR All-Stars dump Dexter

The Sikeston 14 and 15-year-old Jr. Babe Ruth League All-Stars faced Dexter in a practice game at the Sports Complex Monday night and waltzed away with a 19-1 win.

Scott Campbell and his relievers fashioned a no-hitter while allowing a single tally, an unearned run in the first. Sikeston racked up four in the first, six more in the second and had four extra-base hits.

Steven Burgess and Doug Pollard each had three hits. Burgess, Campbell and Eddie Wasson had two-base hits. Pollard smacked a triple.

The annual feature of Belmont Park's spring thoroughbred meeting is the mile-and-a-half Belmont Stakes run the first Saturday in June.

Tailback Ken Wood of Schofield, Wis., and linebacker Mark Kenney of Mazon, Ill., will co-captain the Air Force Academy football team next fall.

Pitcher Mickey Lolich of the Mets began the National League baseball season with a 207-175 record with the Detroit Tigers in the American League.

The sum of more than $4 million in uncashed Off Track Betting tickets was turned over to New York State April 1.

The Thoroughbred Racing Assn. reports more than $495,000 was turned over to New York State April 1. It was money from winning tickets the public failed to redeem.

Golfer Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez uses an Indian head nickel to mark his ball on the green. He always places it heads up.

New York Yankee coach Yogi Berra plays some golf shots lefthanded and others righthanded, depending on the situation and how he feels.

Elks beaten by Jim Moore

The Elks Club finally had its unbeaten string snapped at seven games when Jim Moore upset them at V.F.W. Stadium Monday night 11-6. In the first game, Security National picked up a forfeit win over Craig Pools.

Juaken Dumas was the starter and loser for the Elks. He and two relief pitchers were touched for nine runs in the second inning.

Centerfielder Chuck Medelberg enjoyed a perfect, 3-for-3 night. He belted double and scored twice in the nine-run second frame.

Don Francis got the win in relief of Garry Griffin. The two Moore hurlers allowed the Elks club just three hits while moving their team within a half game of first place.

Kiwanis wins close one from Daily Standard

Major Division

Kiwanis edged Daily Standard in a high scoring contest 12-11 and First National won a high scoring game also, beating Mid-Delta 17-12.

Daily Standard and Kiwanis started out slowly but picked up the pace as the game progressed. Daily Standard took a 1-0 lead but fell back 2-1 after the first inning. Kiwanis kept the pressure on by adding four more in the second inning before Daily Standard came to life in the third inning with six runs. Kiwanis led 11-8 after six innings but Daily Standard tied the game in the top of the seventh with three runs. Kiwanis scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Tera Ross had a double and triple for Daily Standard. Dawn Hurley belted her fourth homer of the season for Kiwanis.

First National came from a 10-2 deficit to score eight runs in the third inning to pull out their game against Mid-Delta.

Mid-Delta had scored two runs in the first and seven in the second and looked as if they were going to run away with the game.

First National rallied for five runs in the last two innings to win.

Senior Division

Strickland scored 18 runs in the top half of the first inning and walked over hapless Eagles 32-5. Strickland belted out 27 hits to 10 for Eagles. Patty Holt was the leading hitter in the game with 5-for-5.

Minor Division

First National overwhelmed Williams Bros. Const. 22-4 on the strength of 15 runs in the first inning of play. Williams Bros. pitching and defense couldn't control First National as they gave up 24 runs on only nine hits. Williams had only one hit in the game by Lawrence.

JBR All-Stars dump Dexter

The Sikeston 14 and 15-year-old Jr. Babe Ruth League All-Stars faced Dexter in a practice game at the Sports Complex Monday night and waltzed away with a 19-1 win.

Scott Campbell and his relievers fashioned a no-hitter while allowing a single tally, an unearned run in the first. Sikeston racked up four in the first, six more in the second and had four extra-base hits.

Steven Burgess and Doug Pollard each had three hits. Burgess, Campbell and Eddie Wasson had two-base hits. Pollard smacked a triple.

The annual feature of Belmont Park's spring thoroughbred meeting is the mile-and-a-half Belmont Stakes run the first Saturday in June.

Tailback Ken Wood of Schofield, Wis., and linebacker Mark Kenney of Mazon, Ill., will co-captain the Air Force Academy football team next fall.

The sum of more than $4 million in uncashed Off Track Betting tickets was turned over to New York State April 1.

The Thoroughbred Racing Assn. reports more than $495,000 was turned over to New York State April 1. It was money from winning tickets the public failed to redeem.

Golfer Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez uses an Indian head nickel to mark his ball on the green. He always places it heads up.

New York Yankee coach Yogi Berra plays some golf shots lefthanded and others righthanded, depending on the situation and how he feels.

Elks beaten by Jim Moore

The Elks Club finally had its unbeaten string snapped at seven games when Jim Moore upset them at V.F.W. Stadium Monday night 11-6. In the first game, Security National picked up a forfeit win over Craig Pools.

Juaken Dumas was the starter and loser for the Elks. He and two relief pitchers were touched for nine runs in the second inning.

Centerfielder Chuck Medelberg enjoyed a perfect, 3-for-3 night. He belted double and scored twice in the nine-run second frame.

Don Francis got the win in relief of Garry Griffin. The two Moore hurlers allowed the Elks club just three hits while moving their team within a half game of first place.

Circus moves out, Democrats move in

Democratic convention returns to New York for first time since 1924

NEW YORK (AP) — The circus moves out, and the Democrats move in. It's a convention in Madison Square Garden. The Republicans are trying to forget a national scandal. In the last election, their candidate had won an overwhelming victory, but that president is gone, replaced by an erstwhile vice president who is not notably a charismatic figure.

And what happens? The Democrats take 103 ballots to choose a nominee in what is the biggest shambles of a political convention in the nation's history. It takes from June 24 to July 9 to winnow a candidate from the 16 who are placed in nomination.

In short, it is not 1976 but 1924, the last time a national political convention was held in New York.

And though there are similarities in the two conventions — the lingering smell of scandal and of circus elephants — there are even more differences.

No one expects that this convention — or any modern one — will take 103 ballots to nominate anyone. Jimmy Carter has more than enough delegates pledged to win the presidential nomination on the first ballot. His born-again Christianity seems more a curiosity than an issue, which Al Smith's Catholicism was in 1924.

The platform, too, looks pretty well sewed up. Proponents would call it broad enough — and opponents, vague enough — to satisfy everyone.

In 1924 the platform planks set the stage for the ensuing battle. The major issues were the Ku Klux Klan and prohibition, and it was a fight every inch of the way.

William S. Cheatham of Lexington, Ky., recalls how as a page at the convention he had watched the chairman, Sen. Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, try desperately to control the unruliness.

"The chairman kept rapping and rapping with the gavel ... One thing I remember, the head of the gavel came off one of the times Walsh was pounding, trying to keep order. There was a man standing right in front of the platform and the head came off and hit him. As a boy of 14 that kind of struck me as spectacular, although it's no great event."

Certainly, it's hard to imagine such a scene enacted before TV cameras in 1976 but, still, those similarities linger on.

First, there is New York. The Democrats wanted to forget their last experience here when in 1868 the only other political convention held in New York nominated Horatio Seymour. He lost to Ulysses S. Grant, though not as severely as 1924 nominee John W. Davis lost to Calvin Coolidge, who had inherited the presidency — and the Teapot Dome scandal — with the death of Warren Harding.

The 1924 delegates, many still from rural areas, viewed the big city with suspicion anyway. New York was the city of Wall Street, of Big Business, of the money men feared by Southern farmers and Midwestern progressives.

"The citadel of privilege — sinister, unscrupulous, mercenary and sordid," William Gibbs McAdoo called it when he came to town.

In 1976, New York is the city of deficit, of fleeing businesses, of high taxation, of welfare, of crime. And the delegates, many now from suburban areas, may well view it with suspicion.

Fifty years ago there was talk of delegates falling to demon rum, then outlawed by prohibition, and New York was feared by "drys" as a wide-open city.

Booze is no longer an issue, but it was serious enough in 1924 that a protest was lodged when the Hotel Astor put up a welcoming statue of Father Knickbocker, a city symbol, holding a foaming flagon.

"The Democratic party is not symbolized by beer," convention official Stanley S. Quinn complained. "The flagon must come down."

Down it came, replaced by a pennant declaring, "Welcome."

And there were the issues: the Klan and prohibition. The men who split the convention over these issues were McAdoo, a native Georgian then from California, and Smith, a New Yorker, governor of his state, a man from the immigrant-filled Lower East Side.

McAdoo had his support in the South and Midwest, in rural areas where the Klan was influential in the party. He was a dry and an Episcopalian. Smith was wet, anti-Klan and a Roman Catholic.

Robert K. Murray, in his book "The 103rd Ballot," said the two men represented an "amalgam" of the Klan, prohibition and Catholic issues and "reflected a nation in the midst of traumatic changes."

Prohibition could be at least calmed in a mild platform plank pledging to uphold the law, but the Klan devastated the convention.

It as not the Klan's traditional opposition to blacks that was the issue at the convention which, incidentally, had not a single black delegate. It was the first and last parts of the Klan slogan — "Native, white, Protestant supremacy" — that Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans was upholding when he resisted any plank condemning the Klan.

From Evans' writings: First, Roman Catholics — "actually and actively alien, un-American and usually anti-American ... the chief support of such machines as that of Brennan in Chicago, Curley in Boston and Tammany in New York." Then aliens — who were "tearing down the American standard of living," and Jews — "there seems little hope of their assimilation."

With McAdoo fearful a condemnation of the Klan would lose him the nomination and Smith representing most of what the Klan hated — cities filled with immigrant Catholics and Jews — the fight spilled onto the conventin floor after a bitter platform committee struggle.

There were hours of demonstrations and speeches on the issue. The hall erupted in cheers and hoots and fistfights. "Mac, Mac, McAdoo," one side shouted. "Ku, Ku, McAdoo," came the reply.

When William Jennings Bryan arose to call for a solution, the balcony of Tammany Hall backers — they "were not all of the higher class of citizen," former page Cheatham recalled — jeered so that Bryan finally had to plead that he just be allowed to speak.

Finally, a plank condemning the Klan by name was defeated 542 and 3-20ths to 541 and 3-20ths — by just one vote — in favor of one that simply condemned "any efforts to arouse religious or racial dissension."

That fight drew the lines. Neither Smith nor McAdoo would compromise. Neither got the 732 votes — two-thirds of the delegates — needed for nomination. But at one point Smith gained one-third, meaning he could deny McAdoo success.

"Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood," became the balloting refrain as Smith's forces succeeded in holding together the delegation for the Alabama senator and those of other favorite son candidates — blocking a bolt to McAdoo.

On the 38th ballot, it was McAdoo 444, Smith 321. On the 69th, McAdoo reached 530, his highest vote. On ballot 99 it was McAdoo 353, Smith 353, and on 100, Smith 351½, McAdoo 190.

By then it was Tuesday, July 8. The convention had opened two weeks earlier. On Monday the 7th, James Cox, the 1920 candidate and titular head of the party, had arrived in New York from his home in Dayton, Ohio, to try to work out a compromise.

He pushed John W. Davis who, though he was a Wall Street lawyer, had been brought up in West Virginia. As early as June, some pundits had seen Davis as the second choice of some Southern and Midwestern delegations, though he had drawn little attention at the convention.

The Smith group preferred Underwood, because he was anti-klan and wet. On the 101st ballot on July 9, New York switched 86½ of its 90 votes to him. Faced with the Alabaman, indecisive McAdooites began to move to Davis despite an effort by William Jennings Bryan, the Midwesterner, to stop them from nominating an Eastern businessman.

The 103rd ballot began at 3 p.m. At the end of the roll call, Washington switched its 14 votes to Davis. That put him half-way, and delegate chairman began to clamor for the floor. First, Iowa went to Davis. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had nominated "the Happy Warrior," switched 60 New York votes to Davis. The final tally was 844, and a motion to make it unanimous got more than 50 seconds.

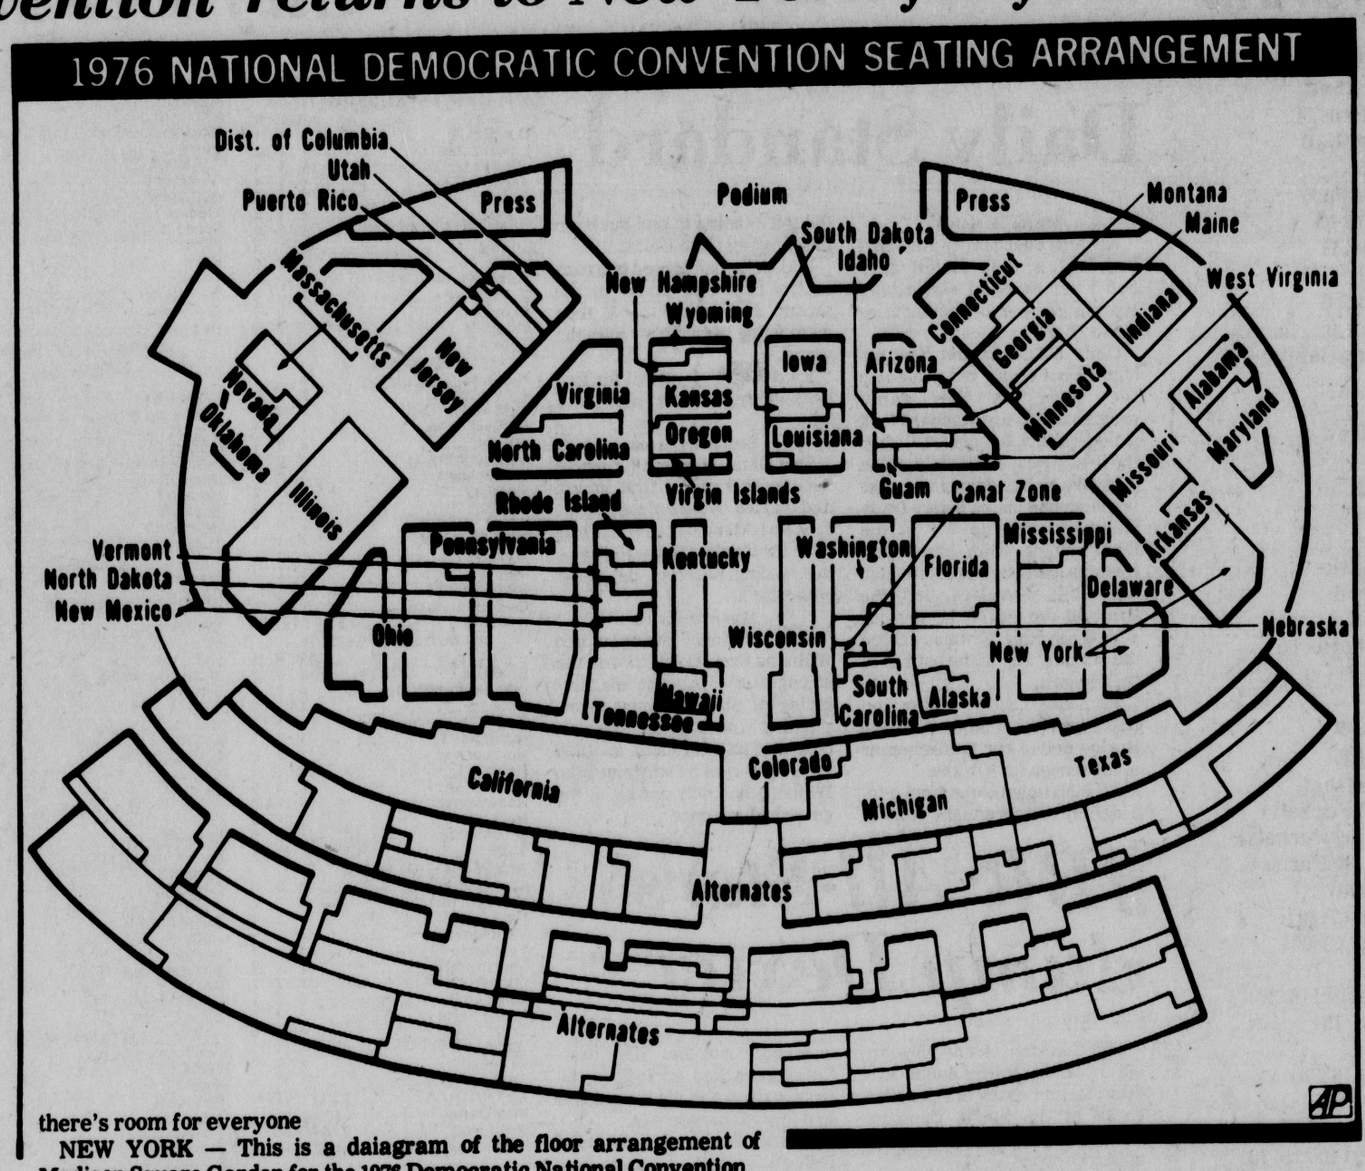
It was over, finally. Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings, was named the running mate. What delegates were left — some had already walked out in disgust — could return to their homes and hope never to hold another convention in the hot, clammy din of Madison Square Garden.

Now they are back in the Garden, though it is no longer located on Madison Square. Prohibition is gone and instead of trying to control the booze, the city is trying to control the streetwalkers that amble along Eighth Avenue not far from the Garden. Businessmen again are promising not to jack up restaurant and hotel prices.

There will be no 103 ballots — any fight this year might be with the Republicans, who in 1924 nominated Calvin Coolidge on the first ballot. But Cheatham, the page at the long and long-ago convenion, wonders if a few things don't remain the same.

He's now 66 and retired from a career as an employe of the U.S. Senate. He is careful to say he has a lot of friends who are New Yorkers — he found them very "entertaining" when he worked for Al Smith's campaign in 1929 — but it's the residents of Gotham he is wondering about.

"I think there's still some feeling by a lot of New Yorkers," he said, "that other people don't have much sense compared to them."



there's room for everyone

Local Eagles contribute to Cancer Research Center

Local members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles contributed $350 toward a $10,000 grant awarded by the national Eagles organization to the Cancer Research Center in Columbia.

Lewis H. Reed, national fund director for the Eagles' Art Ehrmann Cancer Fund, announced the grant at the fraternal and service organization's recent state convention in Salem.

The fund, named in honor of the late Arthur S. Ehrmann, first director of the Eagles Cancer Fund in 1959 and editor of Eagle publications for 25 years, was established by the Grand Aerie to support cancer research by providing grants to recognized research centers, medical colleges and hospitals.

The fund is maintained by voluntary money-raising activities in Eagle aeries and auxiliaries.

The Art Ehrmann Cancer Fund has already presented grants totaling $1,776,110.95 to research institutions in many parts of the United States and Canada.

Every dollar contributed to this charity goes directly into cancer research, with nothing used for expenses, salaries, overhead or promotion. All costs are paid by the grand aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Eagles present funds

Boys-Bar-H Ranch, Nevada, Mo.

Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children, St., Louis, Missouri.

The fund, named in honor of the famed comedian, a life-member of the Eagles, has been established to help schools, hospitals, clinics and other institutions that care for handicapped youngsters. The fund is maintained by voluntary money- raising activities in Eagle Aeries and Auxiliaries.

Selection of the above- named to receive the grants was made by State Aerie officers of Missouri. They were the 24th and 25th such grants to be made to children- helping establishments in Missouri from the Jimmy Durante Children's Fund.

To date over 1,500 individual grants have now been made to children- helping establishments in the United States and Canada.

Thoughtful Use Of Appliances Can Save Energy

NEW YORK (AP) — Cost, competence, convenience, conservation — the Four Cs — should be key factors in the selection and use of appliances by today's energy-conscious consumers, says a man who helps to develop appliances for a nationwide retailer.

"Informed buying and careful use can turn energy eaters into energy savers," declares Bob Leonard, appliance merchandise manager for J.C. Penney Co., who offers suggestions for reducing energy consumption in the home:

Cooking coffee in an electric coffeepot uses less energy than top-of-the-stove brewing.

When buying a dishwasher. look for a model with both Power Dry and Overnight Dry settings. If you're not in a hurry, and after stacking to capacity (a dishwasher uses approximately 15 gallons of water), push the Overnight Dry button. The unit will turn itself off automatically after the rinse cycle, allowing the dishes to dry naturally. With older models you can achieve the same result by manually shutting off the machine on completion of the final rinse cycle.

If your home is centrally air conditioned, consider adding a portable room air conditioner, eliminating the necessity of cooling areas not being used.

Never use a large appliance, such as an oven, when a smaller one, such as a toaster, will serve the same purpose. And never use a burner too large for a pot. Some new electric ranges have three-in-one coils, which permit you to pick the pattern that fits the diameter of the pot.

When buying a gas oven or range, look for one with an electronic ignition, not a standing pilot light. This will produce a gas saving of up to 30 per cent.

Microwave ovens save on room cooling, because all the energy is directed exclusively to the food, and are both efficient and convenient when cooking small portions of food quickly.

Circus moves out, Democrats move in

Democratic convention returns to New York for first time since 1924

NEW YORK (AP) — The circus moves out, and the Democrats move in. It's a convention in Madison Square Garden. The Republicans are trying to forget a national scandal. In the last election, their candidate had won an overwhelming victory, but that president is gone, replaced by an erstwhile vice president who is not notably a charismatic figure.

And what happens? The Democrats take 103 ballots to choose a nominee in what is the biggest shambles of a political convention in the nation's history. It takes from June 24 to July 9 to winnow a candidate from the 16 who are placed in nomination.

In short, it is not 1976 but 1924, the last time a national political convention was held in New York.

And though there are similarities in the two conventions — the lingering smell of scandal and of circus elephants — there are even more differences.

No one expects that this convention — or any modern one — will take 103 ballots to nominate anyone. Jimmy Carter has more than enough delegates pledged to win the presidential nomination on the first ballot. His born-again Christianity seems more a curiosity than an issue, which Al Smith's Catholicism was in 1924.

The platform, too, looks pretty well sewed up. Proponents would call it broad enough — and opponents, vague enough — to satisfy everyone.

In 1924 the platform planks set the stage for the ensuing battle. The major issues were the Ku Klux Klan and prohibition, and it was a fight every inch of the way.

William S. Cheatham of Lexington, Ky., recalls how as a page at the convention he had watched the chairman, Sen. Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, try desperately to control the unruliness.

"The chairman kept rapping and rapping with the gavel ... One thing I remember, the head of the gavel came off one of the times Walsh was pounding, trying to keep order. There was a man standing right in front of the platform and the head came off and hit him. As a boy of 14 that kind of struck me as spectacular, although it's no great event."

Certainly, it's hard to imagine such a scene enacted before TV cameras in 1976 but, still, those similarities linger on.

First, there is New York. The Democrats wanted to forget their last experience here when in 1868 the only other political convention held in New York nominated Horatio Seymour. He lost to Ulysses S. Grant, though not as severely as 1924 nominee John W. Davis lost to Calvin Coolidge, who had inherited the presidency — and the Teapot Dome scandal — with the death of Warren Harding.

The 1924 delegates, many still from rural areas, viewed the big city with suspicion anyway. New York was the city of Wall Street, of Big Business, of the money men feared by Southern farmers and Midwestern progressives.

"The citadel of privilege — sinister, unscrupulous, mercenary and sordid," William Gibbs McAdoo called it when he came to town.

In 1976, New York is the city of deficit, of fleeing businesses, of high taxation, of welfare, of crime. And the delegates, many now from suburban areas, may well view it with suspicion.

Fifty years ago there was talk of delegates falling to demon rum, then outlawed by prohibition, and New York was feared by "drys" as a wide-open city.

Booze is no longer an issue, but it was serious enough in 1924 that a protest was lodged when the Hotel Astor put up a welcoming statue of Father Knickbocker, a city symbol, holding a foaming flagon.

"The Democratic party is not symbolized by beer," convention official Stanley S. Quinn complained. "The flagon must come down."

Down it came, replaced by a pennant declaring, "Welcome."

And there were the issues: the Klan and prohibition. The men who split the convention over these issues were McAdoo, a native Georgian then from California, and Smith, a New Yorker, governor of his state, a man from the immigrant-filled Lower East Side.

McAdoo had his support in the South and Midwest, in rural areas where the Klan was influential in the party. He was a dry and an Episcopalian. Smith was wet, anti-Klan and a Roman Catholic.

Robert K. Murray, in his book "The 103rd Ballot," said the two men represented an "amalgam" of the Klan, prohibition and Catholic issues and "reflected a nation in the midst of traumatic changes."

Prohibition could be at least calmed in a mild platform plank pledging to uphold the law, but the Klan devastated the convention.

It as not the Klan's traditional opposition to blacks that was the issue at the convention which, incidentally, had not a single black delegate. It was the first and last parts of the Klan slogan — "Native, white, Protestant supremacy" — that Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans was upholding when he resisted any plank condemning the Klan.

From Evans' writings: First, Roman Catholics — "actually and actively alien, un-American and usually anti-American ... the chief support of such machines as that of Brennan in Chicago, Curley in Boston and Tammany in New York." Then aliens — who were "tearing down the American standard of living," and Jews — "there seems little hope of their assimilation."

With McAdoo fearful a condemnation of the Klan would lose him the nomination and Smith representing most of what the Klan hated — cities filled with immigrant Catholics and Jews — the fight spilled onto the conventin floor after a bitter platform committee struggle.

There were hours of demonstrations and speeches on the issue. The hall erupted in cheers and hoots and fistfights. "Mac, Mac, McAdoo," one side shouted. "Ku, Ku, McAdoo," came the reply.

When William Jennings Bryan arose to call for a solution, the balcony of Tammany Hall backers — they "were not all of the higher class of citizen," former page Cheatham recalled — jeered so that Bryan finally had to plead that he just be allowed to speak.

Finally, a plank condemning the Klan by name was defeated 542 and 3-20ths to 541 and 3-20ths — by just one vote — in favor of one that simply condemned "any efforts to arouse religious or racial dissension."

That fight drew the lines. Neither Smith nor McAdoo would compromise. Neither got the 732 votes — two-thirds of the delegates — needed for nomination. But at one point Smith gained one-third, meaning he could deny McAdoo success.

"Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood," became the balloting refrain as Smith's forces succeeded in holding together the delegation for the Alabama senator and those of other favorite son candidates — blocking a bolt to McAdoo.

On the 38th ballot, it was McAdoo 444, Smith 321. On the 69th, McAdoo reached 530, his highest vote. On ballot 99 it was McAdoo 353, Smith 353, and on 100, Smith 351½, McAdoo 190.

By then it was Tuesday, July 8. The convention had opened two weeks earlier. On Monday the 7th, James Cox, the 1920 candidate and titular head of the party, had arrived in New York from his home in Dayton, Ohio, to try to work out a compromise.

He pushed John W. Davis who, though he was a Wall Street lawyer, had been brought up in West Virginia. As early as June, some pundits had seen Davis as the second choice of some Southern and Midwestern delegations, though he had drawn little attention at the convention.

The Smith group preferred Underwood, because he was anti-klan and wet. On the 101st ballot on July 9, New York switched 86½ of its 90 votes to him. Faced with the Alabaman, indecisive McAdooites began to move to Davis despite an effort by William Jennings Bryan, the Midwesterner, to stop them from nominating an Eastern businessman.

The 103rd ballot began at 3 p.m. At the end of the roll call, Washington switched its 14 votes to Davis. That put him half-way, and delegate chairman began to clamor for the floor. First, Iowa went to Davis. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had nominated "the Happy Warrior," switched 60 New York votes to Davis. The final tally was 844, and a motion to make it unanimous got more than 50 seconds.

It was over, finally. Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings, was named the running mate. What delegates were left — some had already walked out in disgust — could return to their homes and hope never to hold another convention in the hot, clammy din of Madison Square Garden.

Now they are back in the Garden, though it is no longer located on Madison Square. Prohibition is gone and instead of trying to control the booze, the city is trying to control the streetwalkers that amble along Eighth Avenue not far from the Garden. Businessmen again are promising not to jack up restaurant and hotel prices.

There will be no 103 ballots — any fight this year might be with the Republicans, who in 1924 nominated Calvin Coolidge on the first ballot. But Cheatham, the page at the long and long-ago convenion, wonders if a few things don't remain the same.

He's now 66 and retired from a career as an employe of the U.S. Senate. He is careful to say he has a lot of friends who are New Yorkers — he found them very "entertaining" when he worked for Al Smith's campaign in 1929 — but it's the residents of Gotham he is wondering about.

"I think there's still some feeling by a lot of New Yorkers," he said, "that other people don't have much sense compared to them."

Local Eagles contribute to Cancer Research Center

Local members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles contributed $350 toward a $10,000 grant awarded by the national Eagles organization to the Cancer Research Center in Columbia.

Lewis H. Reed, national fund director for the Eagles' Art Ehrmann Cancer Fund, announced the grant at the fraternal and service organization's recent state convention in Salem.

The fund, named in honor of the late Arthur S. Ehrmann, first director of the Eagles Cancer Fund in 1959 and editor of Eagle publications for 25 years, was established by the Grand Aerie to support cancer research by providing grants to recognized research centers, medical colleges and hospitals.

The Art Ehrmann Cancer Fund has already presented grants totaling $1,776,110.95 to research institutions in many parts of the United States and Canada.

Every dollar contributed to this charity goes directly into cancer research, with nothing used for expenses, salaries, overhead or promotion. All costs are paid by the grand aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Eagles present funds

Boys-Bar-H Ranch, Nevada, Mo.

The fund, named in honor of the famed comedian, a life-member of the Eagles, has been established to help schools, hospitals, clinics and other institutions that care for handicapped youngsters. The fund is maintained by voluntary money- raising activities in Eagle Aeries and Auxiliaries.

Selection of the above- named to receive the grants was made by State Aerie officers of Missouri. They were the 24th and 25th such grants to be made to children- helping establishments in Missouri from the Jimmy Durante Children's Fund.

To date over 1,500 individual grants have now been made to children- helping establishments in the United States and Canada.

Thoughtful Use Of Appliances Can Save Energy

NEW YORK (AP) — Cost, competence, convenience, conservation — the Four Cs — should be key factors in the selection and use of appliances by today's energy-conscious consumers, says a man who helps to develop appliances for a nationwide retailer.

"Informed buying and careful use can turn energy eaters into energy savers," declares Bob Leonard, appliance merchandise manager for J.C. Penney Co., who offers suggestions for reducing energy consumption in the home:

Cooking coffee in an electric coffeepot uses less energy than top-of-the-stove brewing.

When buying a dishwasher. look for a model with both Power Dry and Overnight Dry settings. If you're not in a hurry, and after stacking to capacity (a dishwasher uses approximately 15 gallons of water), push the Overnight Dry button. The unit will turn itself off automatically after the rinse cycle, allowing the dishes to dry naturally. With older models you can achieve the same result by manually shutting off the machine on completion of the final rinse cycle.

If your home is centrally air conditioned, consider adding a portable room air conditioner, eliminating the necessity of cooling areas not being used.

Never use a large appliance, such as an oven, when a smaller one, such as a toaster, will serve the same purpose. And never use a burner too large for a pot. Some new electric ranges have three-in-one coils, which permit you to pick the pattern that fits the diameter of the pot.

When buying a gas oven or range, look for one with an electronic ignition, not a standing pilot light. This will produce a gas saving of up to 30 per cent.

Microwave ovens save on room cooling, because all the energy is directed exclusively to the food, and are both efficient and convenient when cooking small portions of food quickly.

Cholesterol absent from plant foods

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column you say, "There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin." I have read and been under the impression that coconut was very high in cholesterol. My husband avoids eating it for this reason. Would you care to comment on this. We want to be sure we are doing the right thing.

DEAR READER — That question keeps coming up and it is important that people understand why coconut oil can be hazardous to their health. Coconut oil does not contain one smidgen of cholesterol. No plant or pure plant product contains a molecule of cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product. It is found in dairy products, egg yolks, meat, poultry and fish.

The problem with coconut oil is that more than 80 per cent of its fat content is saturated fat. Fat and cholesterol are not the same thing. The saturated fat in coconuts stimulates the body to form excess amounts of cholesterol and fatty particles in the blood stream. For this reason if a person is prone to having excess amounts of fatty-cholesterol particles in the blood, coconut oil and all other sources of saturated fat should be sharply limited. The Inter-Society Commission for Heart Disease Resources recommended on the basis of the opinion of a group of national authorities that the daily saturated fat intake should be less than 10 per cent of the total calorie intake.

You and many others may be getting lots of coconut oil in your diet and not know it. Why? Because many food products are made with coconut oil and the label on the food package will say only vegetable oil. What can you do about this? Simply refuse to buy any product that does not say what the vegetable oil is in specific terms.

It was against the law under the provisions of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to list the amounts of the different types of fats on food labels until about 1972. I know of no other action by the Food and Drug Administration that I have found more repugnant than that sorry bit of history. Fortunately there has been a major change at the FDA since those black days and a more enlightened crew seems to be in command. Note the FDA action was not against false claims but against John Q. Public's right to know how much saturated fat was in the food products he was buying.

Remember that "vegetable fat" can be anything from corn oil to coconut oil. Most of the powdered nondairy creamers are made with coconut oil and contain more saturated fat than does natural cream. The coconut oil will show up in cake mixes, baked goods and any variety of commonly used food products, all sailing under the colors of "vegetable fat." The upshot is the buyer who thinks he or she is doing something good for his health by using a product that contains vegetable fat may have just been had, thanks to our marketing system. The old rule, let the buyer beware, still applies and especially at the grocery store.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The case of the vanishing mansion

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Joe owned a once-proud mansion that, over the years, he rented to an assortment of tenants of lesser and lesser quality.

When the last tenant vacated the premises, the building began to depart also, piece by piece. Radiators disappeared, doors were removed and even bathtubs were cleaned out.

Soon the magnificent edifice was only a shell of its former self. To add to Joe's dejection, he was given an unsympathetic summons by the city for maintaining a public hazard -- an abandoned and decrepit building.

"The city can't blame me for the condition of the building," he protested in court. "Trying to maintain it is like swatting at mosquitos when you're asleep. It can't be done with any effectiveness. In fact, every time something turned up missing, I reported it to the police, but they couldn't do anything about it either. Pretty soon the walls are going to just walk away."

"Great!" responded a city attorney. "Then there won't be any more building and there'll be no more problem. In the meantime, however, the building belongs to Joe and he's responsible for the hazard it represents to the public."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Joe of maintaining a public hazard?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a city, through its police department, is duty-bound to protect property. In this case, noted the judge, although the city's police department has had ultramodern scientific crime detecting paraphernalia at its disposal, it was unable to find the reason for, or to prevent, the disappearance of so seemingly stable an object as a house. Since the condition of Joe's building was due to the ineffectiveness of the city's police force, concluded the judge, the city cannot hold him responsible for the consequences of its own shortcomings.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column you say, "There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin." I have read and been under the impression that coconut was very high in cholesterol. My husband avoids eating it for this reason. Would you care to comment on this. We want to be sure we are doing the right thing.

DEAR READER — That question keeps coming up and it is important that people understand why coconut oil can be hazardous to their health. Coconut oil does not contain one smidgen of cholesterol. No plant or pure plant product contains a molecule of cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product. It is found in dairy products, egg yolks, meat, poultry and fish.

The problem with coconut oil is that more than 80 per cent of its fat content is saturated fat. Fat and cholesterol are not the same thing. The saturated fat in coconuts stimulates the body to form excess amounts of cholesterol and fatty particles in the blood stream. For this reason if a person is prone to having excess amounts of fatty-cholesterol particles in the blood, coconut oil and all other sources of saturated fat should be sharply limited. The Inter-Society Commission for Heart Disease Resources recommended on the basis of the opinion of a group of national authorities that the daily saturated fat intake should be less than 10 per cent of the total calorie intake.

You and many others may be getting lots of coconut oil in your diet and not know it. Why? Because many food products are made with coconut oil and the label on the food package will say only vegetable oil. What can you do about this? Simply refuse to buy any product that does not say what the vegetable oil is in specific terms.

It was against the law under the provisions of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to list the amounts of the different types of fats on food labels until about 1972. I know of no other action by the Food and Drug Administration that I have found more repugnant than that sorry bit of history. Fortunately there has been a major change at the FDA since those black days and a more enlightened crew seems to be in command. Note the FDA action was not against false claims but against John Q. Public's right to know how much saturated fat was in the food products he was buying.

Remember that "vegetable fat" can be anything from corn oil to coconut oil. Most of the powdered nondairy creamers are made with coconut oil and contain more saturated fat than does natural cream. The coconut oil will show up in cake mixes, baked goods and any variety of commonly used food products, all sailing under the colors of "vegetable fat." The upshot is the buyer who thinks he or she is doing something good for his health by using a product that contains vegetable fat may have just been had, thanks to our marketing system. The old rule, let the buyer beware, still applies and especially at the grocery store.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the most remarkable museums in Italy displays only umbrellas. The Umbrella Museum in the village of Gignese recalls the days when virtually the entire town made and repaired umbrellas and parasols.

What's the law?

The case of the vanishing mansion

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Joe owned a once-proud mansion that, over the years, he rented to an assortment of tenants of lesser and lesser quality.

When the last tenant vacated the premises, the building began to depart also, piece by piece. Radiators disappeared, doors were removed and even bathtubs were cleaned out.

Soon the magnificent edifice was only a shell of its former self. To add to Joe's dejection, he was given an unsympathetic summons by the city for maintaining a public hazard -- an abandoned and decrepit building.

"The city can't blame me for the condition of the building," he protested in court. "Trying to maintain it is like swatting at mosquitos when you're asleep. It can't be done with any effectiveness. In fact, every time something turned up missing, I reported it to the police, but they couldn't do anything about it either. Pretty soon the walls are going to just walk away."

"Great!" responded a city attorney. "Then there won't be any more building and there'll be no more problem. In the meantime, however, the building belongs to Joe and he's responsible for the hazard it represents to the public."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Joe of maintaining a public hazard?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a city, through its police department, is duty-bound to protect property. In this case, noted the judge, although the city's police department has had ultramodern scientific crime detecting paraphernalia at its disposal, it was unable to find the reason for, or to prevent, the disappearance of so seemingly stable an object as a house. Since the condition of Joe's building was due to the ineffectiveness of the city's police force, concluded the judge, the city cannot hold him responsible for the consequences of its own shortcomings.

(Based upon a 1937 Buffalo, N.Y. City Court Decision)

Long Distance

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aquaducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

Man goes on shooting spree

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The picture of a quiet, clean-cut loner troubled over breaking up with a wife a bit younger than himself has emerged as authorities try to pinpoint the motive for a shooting spree that left seven persons dead and two wounded.

Edward Charles Allaway, 37, turned himself over to authorities shortly after he allegedly shot down nine persons Monday morning at the California State University at Fullerton library.

The shooting spree left bodies strewn throughout the basement of the library building. One policeman said later, "It was just too damn gruesome. It looked like Vietnam."

Authorities said Allaway, a custodian at the school, failed to report for his regular 6 a.m. shift but turned up about three hours later, allegedly carrying a rifle.

"I'm gonna get you SOBs for messing around with my wife," Allaway purportedly shouted. Seconds later, he allegedly opened fire. Within five minutes, the nine victims were cut down.

Those killed were identified as Paul Herzberg, 41, of Pomona, an employe in the library's instructional media center; Donald Karges, 41, of Santa Fe Springs, a custodian; Bruce Jacobson, 32, of Pomona, an media center employe; Deborah Paulsen, 25, of Anaheim, a custodian; Stephen Becker, 32, a library assistant; Seth Fessenden, 72, of Fullerton, a professor emeritus of speech communication; and Frank Teplansky, 51, of Anaheim, an media center graphic artist.

Listed in serious condition at St. Jude's Hospital, Fullerton, were Maynard Hoffman, 64, Fullerton, supervisor of custodial services; and Donald Keran, 55, Fullerton, a library employe.

"He was a quiet type," said Amol Navarro, a chief custodian who said he had known Allaway since he was hired 18 months ago. "Whenever he went on a break, he would go alone. And he never seemed to eat lunch with anyone. He always seemed to want to be alone."

Navarro said Allaway "never cussed, had a good attendance record at work and was clean-cut."

Navarro added, however, that Allaway had been troubled for the past few weeks over the separation from his wife, Bonnie, 22.

Bonnie Allaway is employed at the Hilton Inn in Fullerton. After the shooting, her husband drove there from the campus and spoke with her before telephoning police to turn himself in.

"I think they'd been married two or three years," said Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Allaway's supervisor at the motel, "and Bonnie had recently filed for divorce."

"He apparently didn't tell her anything about what went on at the school," Mrs. Ferguson said of his visit with his wife after the shooting.

"She didn't realize what had happened until the police arrived. Then she just backed up against a wall and started crying."

Ted Mack dies at 72

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Ted Mack, who presided over the Original Amateur Hour program on radio and television, is dead at 72.

Mack died about 4 p.m. Monday, according to a spokesman at Phelps Memorial Hospital.

Mack began his career in entertainment as a band leader and vaudeville master of ceremonies in the 1920s.

In 1935 he joined the Major Bowes Original Amateur Hour radio show as a talent scout. He succeeded Bowes as emcee of the program in 1948.

It's Too Easy

The nation's productivity problem stems from smarter people doing dumber work, according to Conference Board studies. The U.S. educational level is rising at the same time job content is declining. As a result, studies show that more than 70 per cent of all working people feel they are underutilized. Among the suggested solutions: redesign certain jobs, improve the working environment and union-management relations, and involve employes more in decision-making.

Alleged embezzler is indicted

A federal grand jury in St. Louis Thursday indicted a Broseley woman, alleging that she embezzled funds totaling more than $10,000 from the Dexter branch of Southern Missouri Savings and Loan, formerly Poplar Bluff Saving and Loan.

The grand jury issued a five-county indictment against Gloria Sue Deem, alleging that the money was embezzled between December, 1973 and September, 1975.

Federal officials in St. Louis said a warrant had been issued for the Deem woman's arrest, alleging five counts of embezzlement and mis-applying funds.

Bond for the former employe was set at $10,000 federal officials said.

Carter finished a series of personal interviews with the potential running mates Monday and said he would sort all the information and impressions he had gathered and make his choice.

"I don't know how to describe the procedure," he said, "except as a thought process.

"It's undoubtedly the most important decision that I will make this year," Carter said, "perhaps one of the most important in my whole life."

Carter said he had discussed with each of the seven finalists "the fact that they might very well be my successor because of something happening to me during my term, or if I should finish out my term, that they might very well be the natural next candidate for president.

"So, I feel a very heavy responsibility on my shoulders in that I might very well be helping to choose the next president of our country if I should be successful and be elected," Carter said.

Rosalynn Carter disclosed Monday night that she has sat in on all of the interviews and that she also looked over the wives of each prospective ticket mates.

One of those on the list took himself out of consideration Monday. Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, who headed the House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings on Richard Nixon, said he withdrew because of a recurring glaucoma from which he suffers. That left six, all members of the Senate.

Carter revealed Monday that private polls taken by his campaign organization showed that only two of these would actually help his chances in the fall. He identified them as Glenn and Muskie.

Man goes on shooting spree

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The picture of a quiet, clean-cut loner troubled over breaking up with a wife a bit younger than himself has emerged as authorities try to pinpoint the motive for a shooting spree that left seven persons dead and two wounded.

Edward Charles Allaway, 37, turned himself over to authorities shortly after he allegedly shot down nine persons Monday morning at the California State University at Fullerton library.

The shooting spree left bodies strewn throughout the basement of the library building. One policeman said later, "It was just too damn gruesome. It looked like Vietnam."

Authorities said Allaway, a custodian at the school, failed to report for his regular 6 a.m. shift but turned up about three hours later, allegedly carrying a rifle.

"I'm gonna get you SOBs for messing around with my wife," Allaway purportedly shouted. Seconds later, he allegedly opened fire. Within five minutes, the nine victims were cut down.

Those killed were identified as Paul Herzberg, 41, of Pomona, an employe in the library's instructional media center; Donald Karges, 41, of Santa Fe Springs, a custodian; Bruce Jacobson, 32, of Pomona, an media center employe; Deborah Paulsen, 25, of Anaheim, a custodian; Stephen Becker, 32, a library assistant; Seth Fessenden, 72, of Fullerton, a professor emeritus of speech communication; and Frank Teplansky, 51, of Anaheim, an media center graphic artist.

Listed in serious condition at St. Jude's Hospital, Fullerton, were Maynard Hoffman, 64, Fullerton, supervisor of custodial services; and Donald Keran, 55, Fullerton, a library employe.

"He was a quiet type," said Amol Navarro, a chief custodian who said he had known Allaway since he was hired 18 months ago. "Whenever he went on a break, he would go alone. And he never seemed to eat lunch with anyone. He always seemed to want to be alone."

Navarro said Allaway "never cussed, had a good attendance record at work and was clean-cut."

Navarro added, however, that Allaway had been troubled for the past few weeks over the separation from his wife, Bonnie, 22.

"I think they'd been married two or three years," said Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Allaway's supervisor at the motel, "and Bonnie had recently filed for divorce."

"He apparently didn't tell her anything about what went on at the school," Mrs. Ferguson said of his visit with his wife after the shooting.

"She didn't realize what had happened until the police arrived. Then she just backed up against a wall and started crying."

Ted Mack dies at 72

Mack began his career in entertainment as a band leader and vaudeville master of ceremonies in the 1920s.

In 1935 he joined the Major Bowes Original Amateur Hour radio show as a talent scout. He succeeded Bowes as emcee of the program in 1948.

It's Too Easy

The nation's productivity problem stems from smarter people doing dumber work, according to Conference Board studies. The U.S. educational level is rising at the same time job content is declining. As a result, studies show that more than 70 per cent of all working people feel they are underutilized. Among the suggested solutions: redesign certain jobs, improve the working environment and union-management relations, and involve employes more in decision-making.
